Downtown says close Amador campus

PLEASANTON — Angry merchants are seriously considering starting a movement to change Amador High School from an open to a closed campus.

A murmer went through the Downtown Business Association Friday when Sue Hacker, owner of The Caboose on Main Street near the school, asked if there was any way the association could do something about teenagers congregating and littering in front of stores.

That question lifted the lid off the steampot and almost all of the 45 people present rushed to tell of their own problems.

"If that is the only thing we did next year, this group would really have been worth something," said president Joyce Getty after the uproar died down.

No formal action was taken, but Getty later told The Times the project will likely be an important issue at the association's next meeting late in January.

According to Hacker and Getty, at least three merchants who don't want to be identified have said they are afraid to call the police about the problem because "they don't want to come to work the next morning and find their windows smashed."

And Hacker told The Times one merchant was threatened by a group crowded on his sidewalk when he said he was going to call the police. He never made that call, according to Hacker.

"I'm sure most come downtown to eat lunch and go back to school," Hacker continued. "What bothers me are the ones who don't go back to school after lunch, but just hang around littering, swearing and blocking the entrance to my store."

Ralph Laird, principal of Amador, maintains many of the trouble-makers are not students.

"They're ex-students, hangers on, and closing the campus wouldn't gaurantee merchants that the problem would go away," he said.

Laird said he regretted talking to business people downtown through the newspapers and wishes he'd be asked to attend one of their meetings or be phoned directly by them.

"If merchants or law enforcement would tell us specifically the names of the people causing the problem, we would have the power to restrict those on campus. The students are ours from the time they arrive at school until they leave, but neither the police or merchants have called me with names," complained Laird.

Pleasanton policeman Lt. Dave Freeman told The Times his officers are also limited unless they get direct help from merchants.

"A merchant tells us all those kids out there are messing up my parking lot. Well, we can't go out there and arrest all those kids in the parking lot because we didn't see who did the littering. We need a witness who will sign a complaint."

Speeding downtown and "dragging Main" are sideline problems resulting from an open campus, believe association members. And Getty said the association hopes to get results by pressuring the school board and the city council to somehow clean up downtown.

GGC title spot lost by Chabot

Although a possible berth in the Bay Bowl was killed Friday Night, Chabot College's football team let a share of the Golden Gate Conference championship slip away in a 42-39 loss to the College of San Mateo on the peninsula yesterday afternoon.

The Glads took a 25-0 first quarter lead and held a 39-27 advantage with less than a minute to play, but the hot arm of CSM's Ralph Costanzo passed for a touchdown and after recovering an on-sides kick, CSM scored the clincher on a 13-yard run by Costanza.

San Mateo and Laney tied for the GGC title with 6-2 records. Chabot finished at 5-3. Laney will go to the Bay Bowl by virtue of a win in regular season over CSM. They beat San Jose City College Friday.

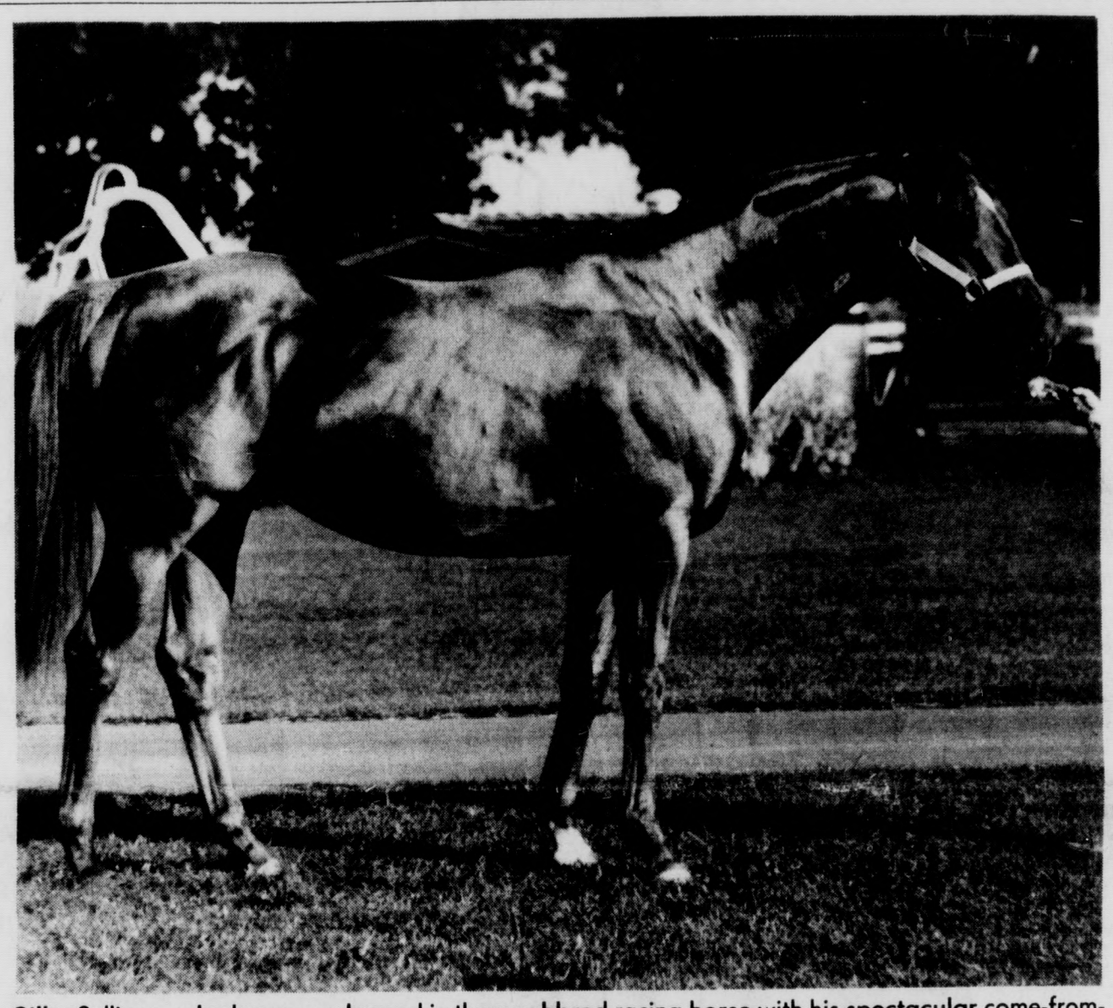
Folk hero who died in Pleasanton



Silky Sullivan, who became a legend in thoroughbred racing horse with his spectacular come-from-behind wins, may be buried in the infield at Golden Gate Fields if soil conditions permit.

PLEASAMTON — Silky Sullivan, the legendary racehorse who was jockeyed by Willie Shoemaker and known for winning races after being as much as 40 lengths out, died here Friday at the age of 22.

"He lived a good life," recalled trainer Emmett Campbell with a glassy look in his eyes. "He was well kept and healthy as can be right up 'till the last."

Campbell 68 was Silky's manager and trainer when the thoroughbred retired "a couple years ago" at 8 Green Oaks Stables on Tassajara Road.

"We kept him in the back where he could run around a lot," Campbell said. "He used to come from behind with a burst of speed — that was his way of running."

The veteran trainer said the stallion's owner, Kjell Qvale, had not been notified yet because he was in a San Francisco hospital recovering from a heart operation.

"Shoemaker rode him at Golden Gate Fields," Cambell said looking back on the horse's 10 year racing career. Ever since, as a tribute to "Irish heritage" Silky Sullivan was paraded around the track at Golden Gate Fields commemorating St. Patricks's Day.

In 1958 as a 3-year-old, Silky won at Santa Anita making a surge for the wire after being 40 lengths behind. Again, this time in the Santa Anita Derby, he came from 30 lengths out stomping the field soundly by three lengths.

That race made him a co-favorite with Tim Tam to win the Kentucky Derby but to the astonishment of many race fans, Silky loped in a disappointing 12th out of 14 horses.

He also started the Preakness that year but the best he could manage was a mediocre eighth place.

During the prime of his career, Silky's melodramatic finished captured the hearts of school children across the nation and prompted them to send letters to the horse.

Social service agencies map new coalition

The framework for a Valley coalition of social service agencies was constructed Friday at a meeting attended by 45 representatives of a broad spectrum of social concerns groups.

A steering committee was formed to guide the embryonic organization for the first three months, the initial meeting of the pilot group befng set for Wednesday, Dec. 7 at the Presbyterian Church in Pleasanton at 10 a.m.

The committee is composed of Betty Stallings, executive director of the Valley Volunteer Bureau and convener of Friday's exploratory meeting; Elizabeth Platt, Valley Childrens Care; Beatrice Langlois, Good Samaritan; Celia Baker, Health Care Concerns Committee; Lu Wilson, Seniors of Pleasanton; Maggie Lopez, Early Childhood Education of Livermore; Barbara Tuck, Parental Stress; a representative of the Livermore Area Recreation and Parks District; Sharon Kosch, City of Pleasanton; Sally Condit, Tri-Valley Child Development Center; Richard Howell, Garnett Austin Center in Livermore; Virginia Loewe and Chandra Hinman, aides to Supervisor Valerie Raymond, and a representative of the Pleasanton Housing Authority.

Mrs. Stallings keynoted the meeting by commenting "We're here today to shape a vision— a shared dream by a group of dedicated people."

Mrs. Raymond noted the county receives $12 million a year in revenue sharing funds, with $7 million of that figure going to 115 groups. She said the rest is abosorbed in various county programs.

Livermore's new plan to recycle

LIVERMORE — The city council will be asked Monday to urge voluntary residential participation in separating recyclable materials from other trash for free collection every other week on their regular garbege day.

The recycling program will be at no additional cost to residents since sale of recycled materials to procesors will cover the cost.

The proposal goes to the council after a very favorable response came in a random sampling of community attitudes on recycling over the last two weeks. A special survey team interviewed 61 residents and 72 per cent of those interviewed said they would participate in a recycling program. Another 16 per cent said they probably would participate.

The survey also indicated that 65 per cent of the respondents would prefer to separate out the four recyclable materials instead of paying to have them separated from a common container. And 80 per cent said they preferred carrying the recyclables to the curb rather than paying extra to have backyard pickup.

An Oakland Scavenger empioye driving a flat-bed pickup truck with a trailer will make the curbside pickups of clear glass (without lids or corks and no metal rings attached), newspapers bundled (not including slick, color magazines) and brown and green glass in a common container.

AC Transit strike threat

We could lose BART bus service

If AC Transit bus drivers strike tomorrow, as they threaten, there won't be any AC Transit feeder bus service to BART.

That was the word Friday from a BART public information officer.

If it's any consolation, BART will be adding trains to its rail lines to make up for the lack of AC Transit service if the strike comes.

The problem for Valley commuters will be to get to the BART trains.

BART and AC Transit management were hopeful yesterday and Friday that some settlement will be reached before midnight tonight.

The bus drivers have been working without a new pay agreement since July. Negotiations were running smoothly until mid-September when management rejected the bus drivers' union proposal for changes in employe pension plans. It remains a major issue in the talks.

Management's latest offer to the union was a 3.4 per cent salary increase every year for the next three years.

Union officials are asking a 6.6 per cent annual hike to match projected cost-of-living increases.

The last AC Transit strike occurred in 1974 and shut down the system for two months.

The transit union represents 1,800 of the district's 2,000 workers.

Learn about flying

Area residents 15 through 21 years old interested in aviation are invited to attend a meeting Monday, Nov. 21 at 7 p.m. at the Livermore Airport Administration Building to learn about air exploring.

The Air Explorers are affiliated with Scouting U.S.A., but run an independant program on all aspects of aviation including sport flying, commerical and private aircraft and aircraft maintenance.

Individuals will have the opportunity to fly with a licensed pilot, hear speakers on hang gliding, parachutng and hot air ballons.

For more information on the program call Bob Jones, 443-2688, or Jon Thomas, 455-6462.

Building protest

Opposition to Sinbad 720's request to develop five homes on 720 acres in Kilkare Woods, Sunol, will be considered by the Alameda County Planning Commission at 399 Elmhurst, Hayward, tomorrow.

The board of directors of Preserve Area Ridgelands Committee is protesting the development, claiming it will hurt the cause of preserving open space on the ridgelands.

The county's agricultural advisory committee last week recommended the develpment be allowed, adding it's a good idea to cluster the homes at the bottom of the property to give the maximum preser ation effect on the ridges.

Innocent plea by Livermore rape suspect

John R. Shook, has pleaded not guilty to charges he kidnapped and raped an 18-year-old Chabot College Valley Campus coed Oct. 26.

Shook, 24, entered his plea in Livermore Municipal Court Friday and is now scheduled for a preliminary hearing Dec. 7 to determine if the case should be sent to Alameda County Superior Court. He remains in custody in Santa Rita Prison in lieu of $35,000 bail.

Shook was arrested in Gallup, N.M. two days after the alleged incident when he surrendered to police there. The victim's description of the suspect, a red-haired man with a goatee and pony tail, was seen in the newspapers by Shook's family.

Heritage

A plea for lost artifacts

DUBLIN — The Dublin Historical Preservation Association (DHPA) is offering a "no questions asked" deal to the person or persons who looted DHPA's Heritage Center the night of Nov. 10.

"Just drop stolen items and money into the all-day/all-night book depository outside Dublin Public Library's main door at 6930 Village Parkway in Dublin," stated Marie Cronin, Heritage Center director. "No questions will be asked."

Looters took and/or damaged over $4000 worth of property, Cronin announced.

She said if the burglars failed to return the goods, she wanted to remind the public there is a standing $100 reward for information leading to their arrest.

Stolen items included a Hatachi tape recorder with a taped interview with "old timers," a Minolta XL-400 movie camera with film of Heritage Center dedication ceremonies Oct. 15, 1977, and a Commodore, Model 886D pocket calculator.

Also two tagged "DHPA Storage", hammer, $15 petty cash, $60 raised by children in Dublin schools which was to go toward building a ramp for handicapped and two De Anza Expedition facsimile swords.

The Old Murray School hand and desk bells plus a 1924 American flag and an Indian beaded bag were also taken, Cronin stated.

Besides the looting, tombstones in the Pioneer Cemetery at the Heritage Center location were vandalized.

Cronin said a large marble angel was thrown off its pedestal and smashed. She is hoping someone who knows how to restore such art will contact her at 828-3377.

Local school children have volunteered their services to help with clean-up around the Heritage Center and cemetery.

Police arrest young suspects

LIVERMORE — Two juveniles suspected of burglarizing the Valley Machine Shop at 192 Airway Blvd. last week were arrested by police who staked out the suspects' van awaiting their return.

Officers spotted two youths behind the shop late Tuesday but were unable to catch them. Police discovered an open window and unlocked door at the shop.

A computer check of cars parked at the scene showed one car that didn't belong there, police said. The registered owner went to the scene, identified the vehicle and removed its rotor so the car couldn't be started.

Police staked out the car from a distance and waited until the suspects returned and tried to start it up before making t e arrests.

Two 17-year-old youths were booked on suspicion of burglary.

PLEASANTON — Burglars forced their way into a Foothill Road residence Thursday and stole more than $1,100 in goods, sheriff's deputies reported.

Olive Gurney said burglars pulled off her screen door and forced open the front door. Once inside, they took a color television, stereo system and a clock radio.

One fingerprint was lifted at the scene. The investigation is continuing.

LIVERMORE — A 12-year-old girl was the victim of an indecent exposure here Thursday, police reported.

The girl told police she was called to the home of a boy who said mail intended for her had accidentally been delivered to his house. When she arrived, he exposed himself to her and she ran home to call police.

A 14-year-old boy is being sought for questioning in connection with the case.

LIVERMORE — One youth was arrested in a Livermore High School restroom Thursday when a teacher walked in and witnessed an alleged drug deal being transacted.

The teacher reportedly saw a $5 bill change hands and found a metal container allegedly containing 14 marijuana cigarettes.

A 15-year-old youth was booked on suspicion of possessing marijuana for sale.

LIVERMORE — Burglars pried open a window to a Bluebell Drive residence Wednesday and took more than $1,000 in valuables, police reported.

Murray trustees to view pupil tests

Second and third graders of 1976-77 in the Murray School District tested out at the top of their respective comparison bands in reading tests given last spring.

And sixth graders showed substantial improvement in mathematics and spelling, as also tested in the California Assessment Program.

Results of the testing were presented to the Parent-Administrative Council Thursday night at Cronin School in Dublin. The tests will be reviewed Monday night at a meeting of the school board at Frederiksen School.

Les Schmidt, curriculum coordinator for the district, credited the resource program and fourth, fifth, and sixth grade teachers for the generally improved showing.

"We do not see the great discrepancies between grades as in past years," added Schmidt.

Second graders taking the reading tests in 1976-77 tested-out at the 83rd percentile, meaning they performed better than 82 per cent of all other second graders in California public schools.

Third graders tested at the 84th percentile.

The respective comparison bands, derived from socioeconomic factors, were 71 to 84 for second grade and 71 to 85 for third grade.

The sixth graders showed improvement (over scores of previous sixth graders tested) in reading (up 6 per cent), written expression (up 4 per cent), mathematics (up 4 per cent), and spelling (up 1 per cent).

Percentile rankings were 70 for reading, 72 written expression, 75 spelling, and 75 mathematics. The respective comparison bands are 75-87 , 74-84, 68-81 and 69-85. Sixth graders fell slightly below the band in reading and written expression.

Schmidt said results for individual schools were presented to principals Thursday. He urged that parents interested in the scores of particular schools contact the principals concerned.

Schmidt said the district would prefer to hold the individual school test results and release them to parents making inquiries.

In his conclusion, Schmidt said the Murray results are similar to those of the over-all state picture. "Reading achievement tMrought the state has remained stable for the past several yars. Variations from year-to-year appear to come from the composition of classes of pupils."

He adds that sixth grade results throughout the state showed an incrase in achievement in all areas tested with the greatest gain in the area of mathematics.

The district mean scores for each subject were:

Grade 2 reading, 79.3; Grade 3 reading, 90.6; Grade 6 reading, 70.9; written expression, 69.1; spelling, 67.6; mathematics, 62.6.

Fair, county pact pondered

County Fair Association board members will decide whether to accept a proposed four-year contract with the county at a special executive session planned for 8 p.m. Monday.

Fair Secretary-Manager Lee Hall said complete contract language had been received from Roland Mayne's office at the county.

Fair directors earlier this month postponed action on the tentative pact pending reception of the precise wording.

Key to action on the pact rests with the proposed future makeup of the board and whether that is part of contract language or policy tied to the contract.

Supervisor Valerie Raymond last week said the proposed 13 elected, 10 nominated makeup is being directed as "policy." Under terms pushed by the Suprvisors, five of the present 16 elected members would have to resign from the board in the next five years.

An executive committee meeting will precede the full board closed session.

Valley social groups unite

"One thing I learned early-on is we're never going to have enough money to serve everyone." She said the Human Services Council is trying to learn what needs assessment studies have been done in the county.

"We must find ways to work with cities and community groups to coordinate these human service needs better," Mrs. Raymond stated.

"What's frustrating for small cities such as Livermore and Pleasanton is finding ways to manage all the requests for funding they get."

The first term supervisor concluded by commenting, "I really hope we have the mechanism here to form a united voice to meet the Valley's needs and priorities."

Sally Trautwein, director of the South County Coalition based in Hayward, discussed the formation of that group and its activities.

She said the coalition, largest in the county, had grown from six to 60 agencies.

The coalition meets once a month and is presently trying to establish a library, a media center for printing materials and is continuing to lobby for revenue sharing monies.

Mrs. Trautwein encouraged a Valley-South County link but admitted the Livermore - Amador Valley group could eventually stand by itself.

Mrs. Trautwein said the South County coalition had not incorporated because "if we incorporated, we would be competing with ourselves when applying for funds."

The representatives present broke into four discussion groups after a break, reforming to organize a volunteer steering committee.

Board to review SR students' test results

DANVILLE— Bud Lowrey will discuss progress and plans made for the year-round school project and trustees will go over results of California Assessmnt Program testing at a meeting of the San Ramon Valley School District board Monday.

The board convenes at 7:30 p.m. at the Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Dr.

The test results were reviewed earlier this week by Syma Hasseltine, coordinator of evaluation, and Dr. Jim Solberg, with members of the Valley news media.

Second and third graders were tested in reading, and sixth and twelfth graders in reading, written expression, mathematics and spelling. The tests took place during the 1976-77 school year.

With nary an exception, San Ramon students tested were near the top of their comparison bands— as compared with students in districts with similar socioeconomic background factors.

Monday's meeting will mark the first for newly-elected trustee Michael Wahlig. He outpolled three other candidates in an election held Nov. 8.

Wahlig has nominated Karen Stepper, one of the other candidates, to serve as the fifth member of the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Budget and Finance.

Trustees have a substantial agenda to wade into Monday.

After receiving the test results and the year-round schools report, they'll consider approval of six Adult Education courses to be offered in the winter quarter beginning Jan. 1, 1978, act on Del Amigo School's application for a planning grant (for AB 65 monies), receive the Hart (AB 3408) implementation calendar, and review board objectives for the 1977-78 school year.

The administration has recommended a study session on school facilities' needs by set for Saturday, Dec. 17 at 9 a.m.

Also coming before the board is the second reading of a policy on transportation bus loading areas and routes, presentation of the audit for fiscal year 1977, a food services financial report, and dedication of property actions for parcels along Danville Boulevard and Livorna Road.

Honor preps tour SF State

Six high school students from Amador Valley High School in Pleasanton toured the San Francisco State University Tuesday.

Members of the California Scholarship Federation and the National Honor Society, the students visited the Biological Science Building, the broadcasting department, the student union, and the computer center.

"It's a nice campus. I thought the buildings would be older. I'm extremely surprised at the greenery and that there are plants from so many different countries. It's neat," said Anne Maxson.

"The broadcasting department seems excellent and it's impressive. It seems like people are personable here and I like that." said Sharon Camozzi.

The Amador Valley High students are seniors and their graduating class has 450 students. Brent Cullinore stated, "The size of this university appeals to me because there would be more of a variety of people in the classes."

"I think universities are neat places. There are a lot of activities and different atmospheres," said Lloyd Chapman.

The architecture of the Student Union generated a variety of responss including: "What is that? Wow, is that weird!" "Neat, I've never seen anything like it." "It's so fascinating." "Most student unions are just regular dull buildings. But this is so dffferent and unusual."

One student commented, "S.F. State is a reflection of the city. The many ethnic backgrounds and friendly people are evident here."

Any group interested in a tour of the campus should contact Roy Miller, Office of Public Affairs, (415) 469-1665.

Chabot College

Three Chabot College Valley Campus faculty members are recipients of National Science Foundation fellowships.

Dr. Barbara Mertes, Dean of the Valley Campus, identified Jack Healey of Pleasanton and Dr. Arthur Deleray and Mrs. Margaret Emery of Livermore as this year's local winners.

Haley is a chemist and winner of the award for the second straight yar. He will be attending a workshop on "College Science Teaching and the Development of Reasoning."

Dr. Deleray is also a chemist and member of the science faculty. He will be attending a NSF, Stanford University Chautauqua Workshop entitled "Solar Energy from an Engineering Prospective."

Mrs. Emery, a registered nurse and a member of the Health Science faculty, will be representing Chabot College at a Stanford University Workshop on "Nutrition, Personal and National."

The awards are a part of a National Science Foundation program to improve college teaching.

Sunol school board to meet

SUNOL— The Sunol Glen School Board of Trustees will review the California Assessment Program test scores for 1976-77 and hear a report on the district's financial status for 1977-78 at a meeting Monday.

Board members convene at 7:30 p.m. at Sunol Glen School.

The board is also expected to act on an application for School Improvment Program funds, consider a new bus inspection and approval, set-up a School Improvement Council, receive a report on Assembly Bfll 65 plan grants and Mrs. Vivian Scheib's doctorate project.

New aids for library

Pleasanton Women's Club has made it possible for the Foothill High School library to be richer in services with the presentation of a tape recorder, slide projector and a subscription to a current events series. "Students and teachers are making more and more use of our audio visual materials and equipment," stated Cheree Heathershaw, librarian at Foothill, "and the generosity of the members of the Pleasanton Women's Club is helping us to expand our program." Student John Ramirez, a library assistant, places cartridge in tape recorder being presented by Irene Trefzer and Louise Clausnitzer, civic chairwoman.

Murray looks at scores

DUBLIN— Results of the California Assessment Program, which show that Murray students of last year generally showed improvement in all subjects tested, will be reviewed by the Murray Board of Trustees at a meeting Monday night.

The board will convene at 8 p.m. at Frederiksen School, 7243 Tamarack.

Results of tests given to second, third and sixth graders last year were initially presented to the Murray Parent-Administrative Council Thursday night.

Only one action item, intra-budget transfers, faces trustees. They will also receive a budget control report, approve a list of substitute teachers for the current school year, establish a student body account for Frederiksen Intermediate, learn about the master plan for Special Education, receive a comparability report and discuss a National School Boards tape on energy conservation.

An executive session is scheduled at the conclusion of the open session.

Chabot profs get science grant

Commuter class in the home

Chabot College's home study and commuter course programs have helped the college to reach an entirely new "clientele" of students who might not otherwise have the opportunity to take such classes.

This was pointed out by Dr. Richard D. Yeo, dean of instruction, and Warren B. Hicks, associate dean of instruction for learning resources, during a review of the two unique programs with the Board of Trustees earlier this week.

The special series of independent study courses under both programs are designed for members of the community who are unable to attend classes at the college. In the case of home study courses, students work at home at their own convenience, using especially designed self-study materials. In the commuter course program, individuals may also study on their own aboard Bay Area Rapid Transit trains or at home.

So far as is known, Chabot College is the only community college in the nation to offer such courses for rapid transit patrons.

A Chabot College representative maintains a regular schedule at the Davis Street (San Leandro), Hayward, Bayfair, South Hayward, and Union City BART stations to assist with registration, distribute course materials, receive texts and exercises, and answer questions.

The home study courses are administered by a Chabot College representative who performs similar functions at the Livermore, Dublin, Union City, Castro Valley, San Leandro, and Pleasanton libraries.

There are 175 currently enrolled in the commuter courses and 196 in home study courses, an increase of 4 per cent over autumn quarter, 1976. Approximately 50 per cent of the courses offered are in the area of business. The most popular courses are beginning bookkeeping, mathematics for business, and managing your money.

As might be expected, according to Chabot, those enrolled in the BART commuter courses are fully employed, while those in the home study program are mainly housewives.

Store closes

NEW YORK (AP) — Abercrombie & Fitch, which for 85 years sold the exotic and the unusual to those who could afford such items, has put up the going-out-of-business-everything-must-go signs and opened its doors to bargain hunters.

Thousands of shoppers lined up outside the Madison Avenue store Thursday for the first sale day of the firm that was unable to save itself during 15 months of reorganization under federal bankruptcy statutes.

And inside one could hear such comments as:

Clerk: "Madam, your Master Charge is no good, your Bank-Americard is no good, your American Express card is no good.

Rotarians fete wine, crafts

DUBLIN — Today is the day Dublin's Rotary Club is having their Arts and Crafts Fair combined with Wine and Cheese Tasting from noon to 6 p.m. at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Ave., Dublin.

Some 45 artists and merchants will display their crafts. Several varieties of complimentary wines and cheeses will be available.

The entrance donation is $1; children under 12, free.

There will be hors d'oeuvres and door prizes. Proceeds are to be used to support Dublin Rotary Club's Community Service project. Their project is to purchase Cardio - Pulmonary - Resuscitation (CPR) training aids for the local fire department and hospital.

The fire department and hospital would like to have enough equipment on hand to teach at least one out of every four adults in the area CPR techniques.

Dublin Rotarians hope to make this Fair an annual event.

Pleasanton's 'Woman of the Year' is refreshingly frank about her non-stop work

An activist with spunk

An ex-Navy Nurse who worked with Vietnam war vets. A strong supporter of the ERA. A mother who manages legislative studies as well as a girls' soccer team.

Sharon Kosch is no typical woman.

But then, the Pleasanton Jaycees Wives recognized just that fact two weeks ago, when they named Sharon the 1977 "Woman of the Year."

"I was always the kid who was on a million committees," says Kosch, who is both outspoken and refreshingly frank about her work.

"But it took me a long time to realize that I wouldn't do it if I weren't getting some satisfaction out of it," she adds. "I'm not necessarily as altruistic as everyone thinks I might be."

Kosch began showing an interest in a variety of causes in her Navy nursing days, when she worked in Oakland and assisted Vietnam vets just coming back to the country.

"The experience," she says, was invaluable. "But I was really frustrated at the lack of opportunity to really get involved in things other than charity or social work," she says.

Being a doctor's wife and having to contend with "the military structure," she adds, made it difficult to work for things she considered worthwhile.

Kosch first found her nook, she says, in the American Association of University Women, where "I really learned about the scope of the things I could get into. The more involvement I had, the more I wanted."

That kind of involvement including a reading group (As a kid, Kosch says, "Even if I was supposed to be doing the dishes, I always had my nose stuck in a book"). From there, she took on more work with a legislative group, which led into a stint as first vice-president, and eventually president.

And, Kosch became the first chairperson for Pleasanton Human Services Commission, a group that she hopes could become "an advocate, an informational and referral group, a place where citizens can come and ask questions."

Kosch is adament about the need for more human services. "We're all committed to the fact that some type of responsibility of government is there in human services," she says. "It cannot be left solely to the private sector."

"The absence of multi-ethnic diversity" in the Valley, Kosch adds, "does not mean any of human services problems."

Pleasanton she adds, "has special needs" which are not being met — especially the needs of the elderly, younger teens and young adults.

Human services, though, isn't where Kosch stops.

She describes herslf as being "very strongly pro-ERA," and has worked extensively with AAUW to see that amendment passed.

"We've all agreed that there are certain rights that women don't have," says Kosch, "that they need." But there are also "certain privileges," she adds, that women have "that they might not necessarily need."

The ERA, Kosch says, is "very, very simple, and very logical." . It's not "just to benefit women," Kosch contends. "Everybody should have equal opportunities, and the right to choose" what they want in life, she says. Kosch shies away from the term "women's liberation," saying that "humanism" equal opportunities for men and women, boys and girls is what she says shed like to see.

That's partially, she adds, why Kosch has a great interest in kids, in addition to handling her own four-year-old, Todd.

She has presided over a senior Girl Scout troop, which has been an education because "they're living in a world that's rapidly changing. Their experiences are different than mine were as a girl."

"Her son, she laughs, has extensive Girl Scout experience himself because "I take him with me." Besides going to AAUW legislative sessions, where he plays with the other kids while the mothers work, Todd has found some of his favorite activities with the Scouts.

"His first camping experiences were with the Girl Scouts," she says. "They finally named him their mascot."

She also coaches a girls' soccer team, which is also fine with her: "It's neat to work with kids without being their parent. There's a different relationship." But in all cases, she says, "they need a lot of hugging and squeezing. Physical contact is important, to make that moment very special for them. And it's special for you, too."

But Kosch says she's discovered that lots of volunteering means "I have to be a very organizd person. I just have to say 'no' sometimes, or pretty soon the work will control my life."

Volunteering, she adds, "has made me more aggressive than I've ever been," but has drawbacks. "You're kind of limited in impact," she says. "For policy-making, you've really got to be in a staff position."

Kosch says that when Todd starts school fulltime, she hopes to search out a job which could involve "group dynamics" or perhaps "program areas, training adults to work with children."

She is positive that "I don't want to be doing the same thing 20 years from now." But, she adds volunteer work is "very important. It's a viable reference, a learning experience."

— by Carla Marinucci

Sharon Kosch has solved the problems of an activist-mother — she takes son Todd wherever she's going. He's been to so many Girl Scout camps, she says, that "they made him their mascot."

Learn to assert yourself

A one-day assertiveness workshop is being sponsored by the San Ramon Valley Community Center and Assertiveness Associates of Livermore Saturday, Dec. 10 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Cost of the workshop is $8. Class size is limited 25 persons. Signups will be taken through Dec. 9 at the Community Center, 135 Love Lane, Danville.

The day will be spent learning how to "deal positively with stressful situations rather than walk away or ignore them, overcome reluctance or apprehension about the consequences of being honest, avoid manipulati ng others and to stop being defensive and start being effective," according to the leaders.

For more information call Gail at the Community Center, 837-8235.

Job workshop sparks local interest

The first official job-sharing workshop in the Valley, sponsored by the American Association of University Women, taught local women how to find employment — while sharing the work load with someone else.

The workshop, organized by AAUW member Renee Smith was held recently at the First Christian Church in Livermore as a pilot program limited to 12 area women, according to June Schaeffer of AAUW.

The seminar was presented by the Palo Alto organization, "New Ways to Work," which helps Bay Area employees locate job-sharing postions — those in which two persons work at one job.

Area women who came to the workshop, according to Schaeffer, included women who were unemployed, those who were planning to change careers, or those who simply wanted part-time work that could be both challenging and rewarding.

Crista Getz, leader of the program, put participants through a series of role-playing excercises, in which the women described jobs which they would like to someday do. The participants learned how to find a job-sharing partner, and how to create a shared position.

Crista Getz, who presided over the Livermore job-sharing workshop, talked about different alternatives for women who want to share a full-time position. — Photo by Darren Smith

Mary Lou Simonds, a home economics teacher at Granada High School, attended the workshop sponsored by the Livermore Unified School District. The Lawrence Livermore Laboratory's mechanical engineering department sent Corine Wells, an LLL supervisor, to the seminar as its representative.

The workshop was planned to help stimulate community and business interest in the concept of job-sharing, and to educate more area women — those who might benefit most — in its employement possibilities.

Another similar workshop by AAUW is planned for January, Schaeffer says.

Chabot College

In the 1950's, when we were struggling to extend the South County Junior College District into this valley, critics saw that venture as "a costly addition to local taxes, and with very little benefit."

The passing years have done little to diminish the local cost of a Community College, but neither has our enthusiasm over the productivity of Chabot College's Valley Campus ever tapered off.

The decision this week by the South County Community College District Board of trustees to go forward with a four-year plan of expansion at Valley Campus is a solid vote of confidence in that school, its faculty, its students, and in the local community. From the day it first opened, Chabot Valley Campus has surprised and excited all who have been exposed to that institution. The board of trustees has acted to keep pace with that exciting promise.

Far from the "trade school" of society's earlier view of Junior colleges, today's community College is often a leader in introducing young adults to 21st Century skills in medicine and in nuclear sciences. Chabot Valley Campus has recently opened up new ground in the area of environmental concerns.

For the student, of any age, this has meant an opportunity for higher education without the costly commute to a distant university, and the related housing fees. For local parents, or spouses of married students, Valley Campus represents an economy of education that is perhaps their only option.

Given all that, even the local taxpayer must see the Community College as a sound investment, promising the best possible return on our tax dollar.

We look to Chabot Valley Campus, and the Board of trustees, to keep faith with that trust.

Two minute warning

School administrators in San Ramon are moaning a universal tune these days — The Times called it the 'Athletic Blues' in an article last week.

It's got to do with the sorry condition of high school athletic programs given the problems of time, space and money.

At a special school district meeting top administrators gave ominous warnings for the future of interscholastic sports. Low pay, late hours and antiquated conditions are chasing away manY in the coaching profession, it was pointed out. And things aren't likely to get better in the near future.

Insurance costs for athletic programs are soaring, and almost forced cancellation of autumn sports in San Ramon. Voluminous amounts of red tape make ames playing anything but fun. Coaches complain about an erosion of their authority.

Someone blamed the explosion of girls sports for the problems of interscholastic sports. Parity on the playing field has spelled disaster in the budget, he said.

That's a common enough charge in the days since federal statute has decreed no more discrimination in schools, but not really valid.

School athletic problems were brewing long before women were granted equal status. Their arrival has only forced the situation out into the light.

In San Ramon, administrators say there are no easy answers to the problems of interscholastic sports. Their fears for the future are being echoed in districts throughout California.

Forecasts call for restructuring, de-emphasis of costly sports and heavier focus on intra-murals.

It is an issue certain to fuel heated public opinion. We should be prepared for the explosion.

The week in retrospect

'Nuke' pot boiler

"I think our only hope for producing more power for Californians in the next 10 years is to accelerate the construction and development of nuclear power.

"We have to do everything we can to encourage the safe development of nuclear energy and eliminate a lot of barriers that government and some people in the private sector are now opposing."

The commnts are those of the highest ranking law enforcement official in this state and one who could well be occupying the Governor's office some 14 months hence.

He is Evelle Younger, state Attorney General and the early favorite to gain the Republican gubernatorial nomination next November.

But Younger is not alone, by any means, amongst the policy-shapers and public opinion molders on the subject of nuclear energy.

It is this subject, possibly even more than property taxes, employment and funding of education, that could create the spark to fan a routine "brush fire" campaign into a raging inferno.

At this point, and viewing it for the moment from the Republican position, there appears slight chance of ousting Edmund G. Brown, Jr. from a second term as Governor of this state.

If the GOP standard-bearer is to do it, he will have to ride volatile issues, such as the nuclear energy question, to vote victories in the major southern counties (such as Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego) and hope for a near standoff in the liberal northern strongholds of Alameda, San Francisco and Santa Clara.

None of the prospective GOP nominees can expect to win it all on the strength of his name and/or charisma — not Younger, not San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, not Assemblyman Ken Maddy and certainly not Los Angeles Police Chief Edward M. Davis.

This question of nuclear energy power plants, their safeness and proximity to earthquake fault lines is already shaping up as an explosive campaign issue.

Their is every indication that Brown will hop back and forth across the fence, yielding nebulous statements while letting the Wilsons, Maddys, Youngers and Davises wrestle it out with the voracious media.

Maddy says he'd like to see Brown back in Washington, D.C. with the Carter Administration "demanding that Diablo Canyon be put into implementation (as a nuclear energy plant). I think that you have to develop and work on all sources of power, but to eliminate one, to eliminate nuclear for instance, doesn't make any sense, to hang yourself out in space and think that solar is going to come around the corner tomorrow and be the answer, the panacea."

"To stop construction of major reclamation projects, whether it be the Auburn Dam or the New Melones or the Marysville Dam or any of the rest of them, doesn't make any sense so I think that you have to continue to explore," comments Maddy.

The "chefs" are beginning to stir the nuclear energy cauldron....

Poor reporting

Editor, The Times:

I am compelled to write concerning the article on adoption written by Karin Lisa Klein that appeared in the Tri Valley Herald Wednesday Nov. 9 and Sunday Nov. 13. Since the articles were about me I would sincerely like to set the record straight. The reporter misquoted and misrepresented me and got even the most basic facts wrong.

For example, Ms. Klein reported in her lead paragraph Wednesday, "Tricia Perry will leave her Livermore home tomorrow and fly to Iowa to live with her natural parents for the first time". The lead in Sundays article begins, "Adoptee Tricia Perry left Livermore Thursday to live with her biological parents in Iowa". I found that "fact" quite intriging since my natural parents are divorced and my mother is presently living in New Jersey. I am a 26 year old woman and I am not interested in living with my mother or father. My intention is to live in Iowa near the many members of my natural family, not with them. If this had been the reporters only error I would have simply let it pass. However, it was only the first of numerous errors, some of which seriously manipulated the truth.

Ms. Klein reported I said I owed my adoptive parents nothing special because "if they hadn't adopted me someone else would have." As I told the class (and Ms. Klein) I had told my adoptive mother that the search would in no way negate my love for her. (It hasn't). I then said I didn't feel I owed my mother anything special, meaning above and beyond the love most mothers and daughters share. My adoptive father has been deceased for 15 years.

My views were also misrepresented when Ms. Klein wrote, "Tricia said many couples who can't have children adopt because of social pressure to have children." This sentence was presented alone as a complete paragraph. The truth is, I was aked what I thought the reasons were that people adopt. I gave several reasons — Ms. Klein unfortunately saw the most explosive answer as the only one fit to print.

Also some of the basic facts in her story were wrong. I do not have 2 natural brothers and 2 natural sisters. I have 2 brothers and 1 sister. I was not born in Iowa, and was reported. I was born in California.

The above are just a few of the things I object to in Ms. Kleins stories. Actually I feel that the entire text of the articles was inaccurate, misleading and contrived to grab front page headlines. (Both of her stories made the front page).

In the Times on Thursday November 10, Al Fischer wrote a sensitive and accurate article about me and the talk I gave at Amador High School. Although I talked to four different classes that day, Mr. Fischer and Ms. Klein were covering basically the same event.

I have spoken several times at Amador High School and I'm especially sorry Ms. Klein biases and attempts to generate a controversy may endanger Amador teacher Bob Hollands program of presenting speakers of various beliefs to his students. Ms. Klein reported he was "under heavy criticism from parents". I hope she was as inaccurate in reporting that as she was in reporting my remarks.

Fuel for the public strike ban

By Fred W. Kline
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — If proponents of an initiative effort to ban public employe strikes needed any encouragement, they got it recently when teachers in Oakland went out on strike.

These are the same kind of people who say no initiative is needed because such strikes are already illegal. Then they proceed to ignore the law and stage a walkout.

In Oakland, it wasn't like some other places where public employes have been unhappy because raises were only two four even five — percent with fringe benefits. Rather, in the Oakland Unified School District teachers struck after turning down a school board pay increase offer of 7.2 percent in wages and fringes. Oakland teachers average $15,600 per year. It is this kind of activity by public employees that taxpayers find very difficult to understand. At a time when property assessments have caused local taxes to skyrocket and people are having a very difficult time keeping their homes, teachers with good jobs and decent pay are turning down a reasonable, afordable pay increase and walking off the job.

As I have mentioned in this space previously, government agencies such as school boards are not like private businesses, where the price of a product or service can be increased to meet increase labor costs. Instead, boards of education can only raise taxes unless they are at their limit, or reduce educational services and quality to cover teacher demands.

On the top of their demands, teacher unions want class sizes reduced, citing that as a way to improve educational quality. However, there is no provable improvement of education based on ratio of students to teacher. A good teacher will teach effectively regardless of class size, and a bad teacher will always be a bad teacher.

Instead, the student-teacher ratio situation is being used by teacher unions as a job insurance ploy. The smaller the class size allowed, the more teachers will be insured employment. This kind of tactic is being especially pursued by teacher unions in districts where declining enrollments have created new budgetary problems.

All these things, plus the teacher collective bargaining law (which so far has not been effective in curtailing strikes) are creating havoc in public education in California. The state Legislature is watching the developments with interest, and it probably won't take much for new legislation to be introduced to take away bargaining power teachers have gained.

Probably, however, the Legislature won't have a chance to act. It is the feeling here that the initiative effort to ban strikes by public employes will be overwhelmingly successful. And the main reason is that the people are fed up with actions by public employes, as manifested in the Oakland teacher strike and they intend to do something about it.

We oughta do something

Recently a federal commission reported its findings on a two year study of the possible hazards of supermarket shopping carts! Unremarkably the study found no perils existent to the public health and safety in connection with the carts, or at least none sufficient to warrant any governmental regulation of their use.

"But," said one of the commissioners, "we ought to do something." The others, apparently reluctant to completely dissuade the zeal of a fellow member, agreed to officially suggest to all grocers that the carts be posted with warning signs. The skimpy details provided by our source did not relate exactly what the sign should warn the public about. Presumably it would have something to do with the practice of mothers joyriding small children in the baskets.

While it is appalling to learn that there exists a federal commission with so little to do that it could spend even two hours on such a study, let alone two years, the attitude that one "ought to do something" in the face of clear evidence that not the slightest need exists, is even more distressing.

And, sadly, all too many governmental agencies have been created, not only at the federal but at the state and local levels as well, for which there is no demonstrable need.

Too often they come into being because some lawmaker, reacting to the clamor of some small group, feels he "ought to do something." Executives usually don't resist the creation of boards and commissions for the simple reason it gives them additional partronage. They can pay off some supporters, appointing them to the new agency. This is a form of flattery which has proved irresistable to even the most rabid conservatives who otherwise decry too much government regulation.

Perhaps, aside from the unnecessary expense of such useless agencies, no real harm would be done if it stopped there. But invariably, once a commission is formed, its members are imbued with the idea it "ought to do something." Ergo, a raft of half baked regulations.

Unfortunately, this same sense of a mission to accomplish pervades the legislative halls. Having been elected to office the solons seem to think it necessary to author new laws to prove they are doing something. You can usually tell the freshmen members simply by noting which members have introduced the most bills.

With the advent of the continous, year round two year sessions, persistence has become the rule. Once a lawmaker gets a notion for a new law it becomes some kind of a challenge to secure its passage no matter how idiotic his proposal may be. Somehow it never seems to dawn upon legislators that they might be more appreciated if they spent their time repealing a few of the ungodly number of laws which have been inscribed upon the books just during the past quarter century.

As an example, until 1950 the California Business and Professions Code was contained in one volume. It had taken 100 years to develop it. But in the last 25 years that code has expanded into 8 volumes.

Furthermore, in that same period, the various regulatory boards, authorized by the B and P Code, have themselves contributed hundreds of additional pages of laws through the adoption of administrative regulations. Many of these conflict with each other and with statutory law.

To those in office whose watchword is "We ought to do something," there should be only one retort. "Why."

Plug in the pants and lose

Diets are obnoxious but often necessary.

I suppose the amount of bucks folks have spent trying to budge pudge would surpass the national debt figure — and that's a lot of pesos.

Also astronomical are the number of diet plans. They range from well-balanced to damned silly.

Weight-Watchers is very well-balanced. But you are required to eat so much lettuce and fish you get so you don't know whether to hop or swim.

One plan has you drinking water instead of eating when a case of the "hongries" haunts you. I understand this plan not only messes up your body's chemistry but your bladder also falls out.

And there's the low carbohydrate craze. I hear that one doesn't allow you to gnaw much fruit. Two-bits says your body's plumbing is apt to clog.

Of course someone would have to come up with a drinking man's diet. Can't see any dietary benefits along those lines but maybe a snort or two just makes you lose interest in whether you are skinny or fat.

Then there's the eat all the bread or candy or lichee nuts you want and watch ounces ooze away diets.

Other folks pop diet pills which sometimes not only brings on weight loss but gives the "popee" a great case of screamin' meemies.

Ma Nature doesn't seem to care about having her chemistry rearranged via pills and shots. She's been known to zap people with weird side effects when they try fooling the ol' gal.

Some desperate souls go to hospitals and have their jaws wired shut to obliterate obesity. Or, have part of their innards shortened so food shoots through so fast it doesn't have time to make a pit stop and create fat.

Some electrically operated belt/pad gadgets claim to magically melt fat while you read a book, feed the goldfish, etc.

But the humdinger in the gadget realm is a new one called "Vacuum Pants." The ad claims if you just pull on a pair of "these astounding pants," plug yourself up to your vacuum cleaner, away go the inches.

Maybe rug dirt and dust is drawn into these britches and sandblasts away your fat.

A Sacramento lady sez in the ad that she vacuumed off a total of 13 inches in 25 minutes.

"The very first time I used the Vacuum-Pants I lost over 13 inches and in just three days I lost every excess inch I owned," added the Sacramento lady. "Those stubborn inches from my hips, tummy and thighs simply vanished — and have never come back..."

My guess is those inches were scared to death to come back. What respectable ounce of fat would want a repeat performance inside a vacuum cleaner?

I'm personally addicted to an exchange diet suggested by my doctor. Since I was having trouble losing weight no matter how little I ate, el doctor explained it's not always how much you eat but the time of day you eat certain foods is often the important key.

He was right in my case. I flung off 26 pounds. And as long as I stay away (most of the time) from milk and bread exchanges at the evening meal, I maintain the same weight.

Bread exchanges include beans, peas, corn, parsnips, potatoes (white and sweet), ice cream, popcorn, spaghetti, noodles, macaroni and a host of other related items.

Any kind of milk, including skimmed, is included in the milk exchange list.

But any diet can get boring no matter how good it makes you feel to eat that way. Once in a while I go bananas and chomp through the wrong things. Know what? A heavy or unbalanced meal leaves me feeling hungry and unsatisfied now. Guess I'm finally hooked on good eating habits for once in my life.

At any rate, I would rather stay on a diet for life than go around plugged into our Hoover from time to time.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I have a feeling that my boyfriend's been secretly dating my best girlfriend. They both deny this, but everytime I ask him, he giggles or smirks. How can I tell if he's lying? My father says that men who lie always shift weight and stand on one foot and then another. Well, my boyfriend doesn't. I've made a point of observing him each time he tells me something I think may be untrue. I'd certainly like to find out about him before I get any more seriously involved. Help! — C.P.

DEAR C.P.: I don't think a giggle or even a smirk is a definite indication of lying. Many nervous people giggle whenever they feel tension and your boyfriend would probably be very anxious and tense under this kind of questioning whether or not he was guilty. Some people also have a way of feeling guilty even when they're totally innocent.

Your father's theory is shared by Dr. Paul Ekman a psychology professor at the University of California's School of Medicine in San Francisco. He feels that people who are lying give themselves away by tense leg position, shifts or repetitive leg and foot actions. Hand actions such as tearing a nail, clutching at knees, clenching hands into fists or making beseeching hand movements can also be giveaways.

These are all fairly obvious, however, and a really artful liar would be able to protect himself and wouldn't be apt to reveal himself this much. Recently, Dr. Roger Bennett of Ohio University tentatively proved that split-second expressions known as "micromomentaries" occur at the precise moment a person is telling a lie.

The unconscious of the personwho's lying produces a quick flicker of the eye. Everytime a falsehood is uttered there are rapid eye movements. The deeper the emotional attachment to the lie, the more exaggerated the eye movements. These flutterings or flickerings take place at one-sixtieth of a second.

Next time look at his eyes rather than his feet.

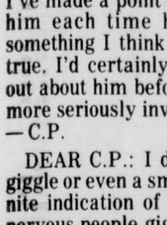
DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I think I'm in love with a very quiet, shy man and I'm just the opposite. I enjoy being with people and I used to be known as the life of the party. Even the thought of being alone for more than an hour or two makes me nervous. Are most relationships between men and women like this? Most women are more outgoing than men. Can our opposite personalities get along? Will I stay in love? B.L.

DEAR B.L.: Of course, it's possible for opposites to get alone and stay in love. Opposites do attract and need each other. While more than three times as many men as women rate themselves as introverts, it's important for opposite-personality types to talk out their differences and lay some ground rules to accommodate each other's needs before entering a serious long-term relationship such as marriage.

For instance, this man is going to need time alone if he is as introverted as you suggest. It's important that you recognize this need in advance and prepare for it by planning for yourself activities that don't include him, or by training yourself to discover some the joys of solitude.

I worry about a person who is afraid to be alone. I believe you may be anxious and nervous about being alone because there's something in you that you're trying to avoid. Some people try to escape problems, that could be solved, by always running from one activity to another. The "party" person, male or female, is often frightened and unable to come to terms with life, but escapes have a way of backfiring.

I suggest you take a deep look at this question and try to analyze why it makes you so nervous to be alone. If you're hiding or trying to hide other fears, it might be better to bring them out into the open and face them.



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB – In one of your columns, you mentioned women in their 50s taking birth control pills to prevent changes that occur with the menopause.

I am 45, and was advised by my doctor to discontinue taking the pill because of the high risk of stroke, heart attacks, etc., in women over 40. I am in good health, and have never had health problems of any kind.

My doctor recommended "Band-Aid" surgery to tie my tubes. I have three children, and definitely do not want any more. I am strongly considering this operation and would appreciate your comments on the subject.

Also, do you feel a woman should continue on the pill after age 40?

DEAR READER – In the first place, the risk to women older than 40 of having a heart attack or stroke because of the pill is not a high risk. Women don't have all that many heart attacks or strokes until well AFTER the menopause, when fewer women are taking hormones. The statistical analysis of the available data suggested that it might cause one death in a thousand women. The data is very poor data anyway, and doesn't permit very many valid conclusions other than further studies need to be done.

Second, more recent analysis of the bad data show that cigarette smoking alone increases a woman's risk six times what it would have been on the pill alone. That means the one in a thousand figure is far too high for women over 40 who do not smoke.

By controlling high blood pressure, avoiding obesity, and not smoking, a woman over 40 can minimize her risk when taking the pill to the point that it has very little significance.

Do I recommend the pill for women over 40? It depends on the woman. If she smokes and won't quit, then perhaps she should not take the pill. If she doesn't smoke, has normal or low normal blood pressure and low normal cholesterol levels the risk is small enough that I would not object to her using the pill.

Then, a woman has other choices, including "Band-Aid" surgery to tie the tubes, or to use an intrauterine device (IUD).

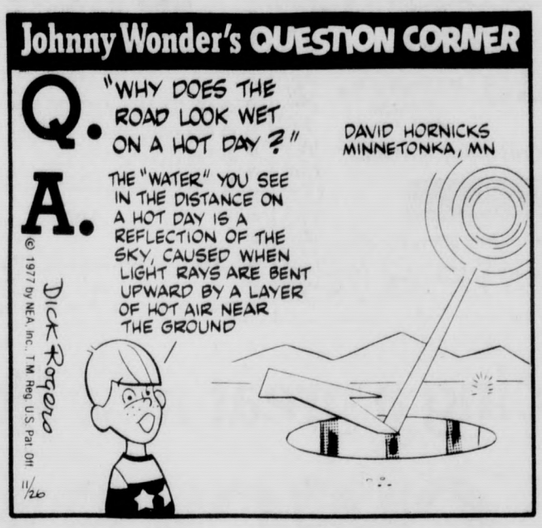
Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "WHY DOES THE ROAD LOOK WET ON A HOT DAY?"
DAVID HORNICKS
MINNETONKA, MN
A. THE "WATER" YOU SEE IN THE DISTANCE ON A HOT DAY IS A REFLECTION OF THE SKY, CAUSED WHEN LIGHT RAYS ARE BENT UPWARD BY A LAYER OF HOT AIR NEAR THE GROUND
© 1977 by NEA, Inc. TM Reg U.S. Pat Off.
Dick Rogers
11/20

On a hot day you have probably seen what looked like a pool of water on the pavement ahead of you. But when you got closer, the water disappeared. It wasn't water at all!

So you know you must have seen something called a mirage.

Mirages are not just imagination. The "water" you saw was actually a reflection of light from the sky, caused when light rays passed through different layers of cool and hot air.

On a hot day, the warm ground heats the layer of air just above it. This layer of hot air acts as a kind of mirror. As light rays from the sky pass from cooler air into the layer of hot air, they are bent and reflected upward.

So you see a reflection of the sky, which looks like water. This kind of mirage is often seen in hot deserts.

The layer of hot air above the sand reflects the sky, and a traveler may think he sees a cool lake in the distance.

Nov. 20, 1977

Advancement in your field is likely this coming year. Where your talents where previously unnoticed, they will now come to the attention of the proper people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Select specific targets today and go after them full bore. This could be a very successful day if you don't get off on tangents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In situations that call for a calculated risk today, let your logic and experience prevail. Betting in the blind could boomerang.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's best that you be the chancellor of the exchequer today when it comes to balancing the family budget. Your mate's ideas aren't as prudent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't lock in on your view today and exclude those of associates. They may have some thoughts you could learn from.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Instead of working to add to your resources today, you might be tempted to do the opposite. You're better off to add rather than to subtract.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, there's no reason you shouldn't look out for No. 1, but don't do so at the expense of others, especially your family.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although you may be inclined to do other than spend time at home today, this is where you'll be the happiest. Outsiders won't be as considerate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Fun activities with a high price tag should be avoided today. You're clever enough to think of dozens of things that dent your purse.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In career matters today you'll receive monetary compensation you're entitled to, but don't look for any pats on the back. They're not forthcoming.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Spend less time thinking today and more time acting. You impede your own progress by overdwelling on what you are going to do—and how.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a chance that you could spoil something good you have going for yourself by talking about it to too many people. Loose lips sinks ships.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your Libran traits are strongly emphasized today. You may feel it's necessary to try to please everyone. Be realistic.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

With all finesses working for him South will take 12 tricks. With all finesses going against him, South must take care or he won't even make nine. Still there is a sure-fire winning play after West opens the queen of clubs.

South must win in dummy and take an immediate heart finesse. It loses, but West has no lead that can worry South. In fact a spade or club lead will give him 10 tricks, but West leads a heart right back.

Now South is ready to attack diamonds. He should lead the queen. This play is correct with 10 cards in the suit since it keeps South from losing a trick if West holds all three diamonds.

This finesse loses and if East shoots back a club an alert South should still scrape up the overtrick. He simply cashes all the red cards and watches discards. If West chucks two clubs and a heart, South can throw him in with the jack of clubs and make him lead from the king of spades.

If West unguards his king of spades, South should refuse the spade finesse. It is too dangerous. He will then pluck the king and make the overtrick that way.

The acclaimed $25,000 rescure truck arrived at the Pleasanton Fire Station 1 Thursday. This truck, stocked with specialized equipment necessary for emergency medical care, is part of the city's three year effort to involve fire department with urgent medical services. The truck's sole function is to allow fire personnel the chane to give assistance in critical situations while waiting for an ambulance to arrive.

A chance for elderly to view KQED taping

DUBLIN — The Valley Community Services District, Fidelity Savings and Loan and KQED are co-sponsoring a Nov. 29 excursion to KQED.

The trip is available to those over 50 years of age. They will view a live taping of KQED's "Over Easy" in San Francisco.

"Over Easy" is the new daily TV series aimed toward the "prime generation" of older adults and senior citizens.

Hugh Down is Master of Ceremonies. The group will have the opportunity to meet him and his guest celebrity of the day.

Registration for VCSD (Dublin-South San Ramon) residents is in progress. Out-of-District residents may register beginning at 9 a.m. Nov. 28.

Registrations are being taken at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Ave., Dublin or by calling 828-7711. A waiting list will also be kept.

There is no charge for the trip.

The day's itinerary is: 10:45 a.m., bus departs Shannon Community Center Park. 11:45 a.m., arrive KQED in San Francisco Noon, a light lunch will be served. 12:30 p.m., view live taping of "Over Easy". 2:30, leave San Francisco and arrive Shannon Park, Dublin 3:30 p.m.

Yes—the pool is open

PLEASANTON — City council members decided several weeks ago to keep the Aquatic Center open during winter months only a few days before the scheduled pool closing — and that late decision is causing problems for Dolores Bengston, director of the city's swimming program.

Although people enrolled in swim classes were notified of the pool's winter use immediately, Bengston had no way of contacting people who merely came to the pool occassionally to swim laps. Thus, general swimming in the center's main pool and diving pool is down a lot from summer and fall months.

She has placed flyers announcing winter pool hours in the library and at recreation facilities, but they don't seem to be reaching many people.

So, to set the record straight for those who do not follow council meetings, the Aquatic Center IS open for lap swimming Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays 12 to 1 p.m. during the day and 6 to 8 p.m. evenings. The fee is 75 cents at the door or one can buy a swim pass for $7.50 which covers 15 swims.

What's the Safest Way to Earn 10% to 12% Net?

Thousands of prudent people believe it is by investing in trust deed loans arranged by Union Home Loans. And here's why they've been so pleased—

HIGH INCOME! Consider the earnings advantage of investing in trust deed loans that pay 10% to 12%* over savings accounts and investments that pay from 4¾% to 7¾%. You can add from hundreds to thousands of dollars to your annual income without lifting a finger. But let us explain how you get this higher income.

You eliminate the middle-man...the bank or savings and loan.

You see, these institutions profit by the difference in what they pay people in interest and what they earn by making higher interest investments like loans on real estate secured by trust deeds.

By investing in a trust deed arranged by Union Home Loans, you earn that EXTRA 2½% to 7% annually—and that's important money!

SECURITY! We've been in business 27 years, and through all the economic ups and downs, NEVER has any investor ever lost a penny on any trust deed arranged by Union Home Loans.

That's because every trust deed loan we offer to you is backed by solid equity in real property. Our loan committee is experienced and tough. If there is the slightest question about the security behind a trust deed loan, it won't be offered to you.

PERFORMANCE! By providing excellent service to the thousands of people who invest through Union Home Loans, we've grown to be the largest in our field, with 33 offices. We offer you a wide variety of investment opportunities from $1,000 to $100,000 or more.

Over half of the people investing through Union Home Loans are referred to us by satisfied clients. Many have been Union clients for more than 20 years!

CONVENIENCE! We arrange to collect all loan payments for you and also arrange to send you your monthly check along with a current statement of your account. We handle all the paperwork. The 10% to 12% return that you receive is NET to you.

ACT NOW!

Find out more about trust deed loan investments which, incidentally, you can assign—borrow against if you need cash. Mail the coupon below. Or we'll welcome your call at (415) 825-4811 (collect).

*When a loan pays off before maturity, your yield increases because you receive a bonus of up to 4 months interest computed on 80% of the unpaid balance.

Sun-bound Cards drench Cal

Stanford's Phil Francis scores a second-quarter touchdown in the Cards' Big Game victory yesterday.

STANFORD — And someone once said that the Stanford Cardinals were lacking a defense.

But the Cards combined their strongest effort all year with a flawless offense to maintain possession of the coveted axe, as they scalped the California Bears 21-3 at the eightieth Big Game here yesterday.

With the win, the Cards registered their first unbeaten and untied home season since 1940.

The Golden Bears' defense was chipped away by the Cards. Only the referees could stop the Stanford offense. Penalties were the main deterrent to the Cards' numerous drives.

But the surprising Stanford defense was something that hadn't materialized until yesterday.

"The key to the game was our defensive play. Our defensive men were in the proper positions and carried out the details of football. The teams that execute well are the ones that win these Big Games," Stanford head coach Bill Walsh said.

Due to the supreme showing, New Year's Eve for the Cards will be spent in El Paso, Texas as they face Louisiana State in the Sun Bowl.

The Cards played cautiously on their first possession, compiling first downs by steady ball control; quarterback Guy Benjamin handing off to Darrin Nelson and John Finley predominantly.

Benjamin, in trouble, tried to dump offto Phil Francis, but the ball was fumbled and fortunately for the Cards, ruled incomplete.

In the first quarter, the Cards' passing game was effectively stifled by the Bears. But the Bears were charged with one of many penalties to put the Cards into enemy territory for the first time.

Benjamin connected with James Lofton on a key play for 19 yards to put the Cards in range. Nelson continued to add to his rushing statistics when he carried the ball 13 yards to be brought down on the Cal 13. On the carry, Nelson became the third Stanford player to pass the 1,000 yards rushing mark for the season.

The freshman added a few more yards and the Cards had a first down on the Cal two. Francis ran to the left side and in, and for the first time this season Cal gave up a touchdown in the first quarter, as the Cards led 7-0.

When the Bears took the kickoff, Oliver Hillmon broke two tackles for a 17-yard gain. A Cardinal penalty moved the ball to midfield, but it was offset and Cal was forced to turn the ball over on the next play. Dan Melville hit one up for 50 yards and the Cards took over on their own 29.

Benjamin was dropped by Pat Graham for a major loss of 18 yards and the Cards turned the ball over for the first time.

The Stanford secondary was sparadic in the quarter. Cal quarterbackGary Graumann completed one for 14 yards to Jesse Thompson as the Bears penetrated into Cardinal territory.

But the Cards' front line was able to contain the Bears' running game and Cal attempted a 61-yard field goal.

The kick by Jimmy Breech wobbled and fell short as the Cards took over on their own 20.

Benjamin was saced again, but the over-eager Cal defense hit the already-downed quarterback and the Cards picked up 15 yards on the penalty.

On Cal's first possession in the second quarter, the Bears' offense bumped Cardinal linebacker Gordy Ceresimo and the number one defensive player was carried off the field with a concussion among the hushed and horrified reactions of Stanford fans.

But Ceresimo's replacement fulfilled his responsibility well.

"Steve Budinger is just a freshman. He took Gordy's place and played quite well. He's quite a prospect," Walsh predicted.

The Bears inched their way down the field but were forced to punt again.

On the possesion, Benjamin threw one up and the fingers of Lofton made it a 38-yard completion. Bill Kellar caught another pass for a gain of 14 and the Cards were dangerously close to scoring again.

Nelson was able to fool the Cal secondary for a gain of 13, and the Cards set up on the Cal five. Francis charged and hopped over the pile of players and made it 14-0.

When the Bears took possession, it was with Charlie Young as quarterback as Graumann rested. He seemed to handle his responsibility well, if briefly.

The third quarter opened with Graumann at the helm again, setting up for a 48-yard field goal by Breech to put the Bears on the board for the first and last time.

For the third time in the day, the Cards were forced to punt on fourth down, as they were halted by the Cal defense.

In a very tense and relatively subdued moment, Cal converted on fourth-and-one to give them another chance. It was the Bears' longest possession of the day. But they couldn't drive effectively against the uncharacteristically rigid Cardinal defense and again punted the ball away.

On an 80-yard drive with short screen passes and Nelson running, the Cards battled their way back down field. With one minute remaining in the third quarter, Benjamin hit Lofton in the end zone for an eight-yard touchdown pass to lock it up, 21-3.

The Bears didn't waste any of the one minute remaining in the quarter. Trying to stay alive, Graumann threw a bomb to Thompson who was breaking full speed down field. The 49-yard completion put the Bears on the Cards' 15. Graumann was looking for Thompson again, and found him at the same time as defensive back Rick Parker, who stripped the ball away and the Cards took over on their own two as the game drifted into the fourth quarter.

When the Cards faltered and punted for the fourth time, the Cal defense began to look determined.

Young returned to the game in the middle of the Cal drive and threw a pass to Dave Mogni to set the Bears up on the Stanford ten. Young spotted Hillmon in the end zone but for the third time the frustrated Bears were unable to score against the Stanford goal-line defense as the pass was ruled incomplete.

Glads blow 25-0 lead

SAN MATEO — The tragicomic season of Chabot College's football team was one minute away from a Golden Gate Conference co - championship.

One lousy minute.

What Glad coach Keith Calkins would do to have that minute back.

About to be perched upon his team's shoulders for a winning coach's ride out of the stadium on piggy - back, Calkins instead watched his team blow a 12 - point lead and a 42-39 decision to hosting College of San Mateo yesteray afternoon.

The temperature, already chilling, dipped below the freezing mark for the dazed Gladiators.

No psychologist could explain how the Glads let a 25-0 first quarter lead slip away. No one can explain how the Glads failed on three occasions in the fourth quarter to complete a game-clinching touchdown drive.

Only a miracle worker could account for an on-sides kick that seemingly slipped right through a Chabot defender's hands and into a pile of eager Bulldogs.

It's beyond comprehension.

"It's too bad, because we outplayed them," said Calkins. "We've had a couple of games like this where we come back and win at the end. I know how they (San Mateo) feel."

This was the first time the Glads — who won their last two games in the final seconds — were on the other side of the stick.

Because Laney defeated San Jose City College Friday night, yesyerday's game was only for a share of the GGC title and nothing more, since Laney had defeated both

Silky succumbs

Silky Sullivan, 22, one of the more colorful athletes in Bay Area history, was found dead in his Green Oak Stables stall Friday. Sullivan had delighted thoroughbred crowds throughout California with his patented come-from-behind finishes during the late '50's. His annual St. Patrick's Day visit to Golden Gate Fields had become a tradition in the East Bay, as was his pre-Santa Anita Derby gallop at Arcadia. He is survived by numerous offspring and, in fact, one of his sons, Silky's Captive, ran in yesterday's seventh race at Bay Meadows. For details see pages 1 and 2 of the main news section.

Bad luck - like old times - hits Glads

SAN MATEO — It was like a combination of the famous Oakland Raider-New York Jet "Heidi" game in 1968 and the San Francisco 49er-Dallas Cowboys playoff tilt in 1972.

There's just no other way to describe Chabot College's 42-39 defeat at the hands of host College of San Mateohere yesterday afternoon.

The Gladiators somehow lost a 25-0 first quarter advantage and with it a share of the Golden Gate Conference football championship.

Chabot seemed to have control of the contest until the last two minutes when CSM scored twice to rally from a 39-27 deficit.

After the first Bulldog touchdown closed the gap to 39-35 San Mateo tried what everybody in the stadium knew they'd do.

An on-side kick.

And it worked, just like the 49er-Cowboy clash five years ago when Dallas recovered an onside kick with a minute left and scored to knock San Francisco out of the National Football Conference finals.

The Chabot players knew the on-side kick was coming and nearly recovered it. "I saw Frank Pauselius (of Chabot) leap for it," said Chabot's Mike Goodison. "I was behind the ball and after that I thought I had a chance for it. Then a lot of players were around me and they got it.

"Frank just missed it," the former Amador Valley High School star went on. "And then it was up for grabs.

John Smith was the San Mateo player who recovered the ball, leaping into the pile of players as the ball squirted around. Several players from both teams dived for it but Smith pounced on it as the ball fell away from a couple of Gladiators.

"We started out really good," said Goodison in somewhat of an understatement. "But they're a good team, probably the best we've faced in the conference.

"Laney was good but they were skyhigh when they played us (Laney downed Chabot, 48-20). I think we had beaten them something like a combined score of 77-0 in the previous two seasons so they really wanted it."

Glaadiator head coach Keith Calkins was disappointed with his team's loss, but praised the squad's play.

"We played a good game all the way," he said. answering a question about the Gladiator's big first-quarter lead. "We just didn't put enough points on the scoreboard.

"I've always felt San Mateo was the best offensive team in the conference and they proved it today," he went on. "But our guys played a good solid game."

Former Livermore High kicker Charlie Bockover, who provided the Gladiators with the winning margins against San Jose, San Francisco and Foothill, kicked three of four extra points but narrowly missed a 33-yard field goal.

Bockover's only PAT miss was debatable.

The kick was high enough and appeared to po between the uprights but the refs ruled it wide.

"It looked good to me," Bockover said. "They said it was wide but it looked straight enough. I don't usually question a ref's call but that kick looked good."

Goodison, one of seven ex-Amador Valley players on the Chabot team, hopes to change positions next season.

"I played some defensive back this year," he commented. "But apparently I don't quite have the speed for defensive back so I'd like to go to wide receiver next season.

"I'm trying to get Pat Inglesby (Amador Valley quarterback this season) to come to Chabot. When he was hurt it probably hurt his scholarship chances,so he might come here."

Goodison summed up the Gladiator season simply.

"I'd say this was probably one of our calmest games this season."

That is probably the most accurate way of describing the Gladiators' wild 1977 season.

Just like the band says

STANFORD — It's all right now.

Stanford won't go to the Rose Bowl; Washington took care of that. Gordy Ceresino's ears are ringing. And admittedly, the Cardinals aren't the mellow, resonable men they were Friday.

But, Stanford is in the Sun Bowl.

Baby, it's all right now.

No one in Palo Alto is overly impressed with a New Year's Eve date in El Paso. Shortly after the Cards' 21-3 Big Game win yesterday, head coach Bill Walsh and Athletic Director Joe Reutz strolled into the Stanford team room.

It was time for a vote. Walsh passed out ballots that would hav e been considered had both the Fiesta and Sun Bowls come bidding.

"Just fill in Duluth or whatever, sign it, and turn it in to the managers," Walsh said, adding with a smile, "then we'll tear them up and decide."

"Yeah, let's go to Duluth," became an instant battle cry. It's nice not to be ignored. A straw poll of the hectic, half-dressed, Cards favored the Fiesta Bowl.

So far, no one has refused to get on the plane for Texas. Some, like junior tight end Mitch Pleis, are elated. The Sun Bowl is on December 31, the Fiesta Christmas Day.

Nature has more time to repair what football has rent asunder. Pleis, out with a separated shoulder, wouldn't be ready by Christmas. The extra six days are a blessing.

Ceresino suffered a mild concussion when he was kicked in the head early in the second quarter. He'd have been ready for either bowl; yesterday, he was ready for nothing but a pair of aspirin and a cup of ice water.

He tried to walk off the field under his own power. Two teammates tried to help him off, but wound up carrying him to the sidelines with the aid of a third Card.

Stanford's doctors and trainers began the usual quiz. What's the score? Who are we playing? What day is it?

"I don't think I got any of 'em right," said Ceresino, who spent the rest of the game with an ice pack tucked under the neck of his jersey and a towel drapped over his head. Cruel though it may be, it might have been fortunate for Stanford he flunked the test.

"When Ceresino left, we said 'That's it, we gotta do it for Gordy,'" said defensive back John Pigott. They, with a boost from Ceresino's replacement — freshman Steve Budinger — did.

"When you lose a player of Ceresino's caliber, it isn't easy to adjust," said Cal coach Mike White. "It's to Stanford's credit that they did and the score reflects it."

Ceresino's injury was an accident. Still, Stanford was leery of the Cal defense and its reputation for violence. It got no further than a spate of cursing and finger-pointing but the game was no friendly meeting of gentlemen and scholars.

Stanford's Walsh saw the simmer turning to a boil and asked the officials to keep a lid on the bubbling tempers of both teams. He said he didn't want a fight of any nature at Stanford.

He also said, "The team met without the coaches twice this week and leadership was demonstrated by many men, including some you wouldn't necessarily expect."

Perhaps Walsh should have eavesdropped on one of those inspirational get-togethers.

"We're known as a team that plays with class," Pigott said. "In our meeting, we said, 'to hell with class.' We didn't want anyone to say, 'At least Stanford had class.'

"We wanted to beat the crap out of them."

He claimed, "They're the type of team that likes to say,'Hey, man, we're gonna kick your ass.' Once we kicked their's a few times, they quieted down."

Maybe, that's what it took for a team that had lost it's biggest game of the season, to Washington and to Southern California. Neither was close. A win in either would have put Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

"Our positive attitude pulled us along," Walsh said. "It wouldn't have been any different on a blustery day in Seattle or a muddy field in Los Angeles."

How it will work by the banks of the Rio Grande against perennial Southeast Conference contender Lousiana State is another tale.

But, Baby it's all right — for now.

Laney wins GGC

SAN JOSE — Laney College used the running of Ray Crouse to down host San Jose 30-14 here Friday night and win the right to represent the Golden Gate Conference against Santa Rosa in the Northern California Community large-school championship game.

Laney tied for the crown with San Mateo, a 42-39 victor over Chabot yesterday. Both teams had 6-2 records but the Eagles gained the playoff game against Santa Rosa by beating San Mateo earlier in the season.

Crouse rushed for 222 yards on 25 carries to spark a Laney ground attack that rolled up 319 yards. The Eagle total offense picked up 446 yards.

Crouse scored two of his three touchdowns in the first quarter as Laney took a 21-0 advantage. He scored on runs of 13, 43 and 37 yards.

The Eagles held San Jose, defending large-school champion, to 96 yards rushing and 197 passing.

Former Pinole Valley High star Mark Dent threw a 38-yard touchdown pass for the third Laney TD.

San Jose finished 3-4-1 for the GGC season and 3-6-1 overall.

The Santa Rosa-Laney game will be played Friday night in Santa Rosa.

Steve Rivera holds the all-time U.C. Berkeley pass receiving record. Rivera caught 138 passes for 2,085 yards in his three-year career at Cal. He also holds the Bears' single-season record with 57 receptions in 1975.

Antioch rips Kennedy, 22-0

CONCORD — Admittedly, Antioch'sMarv Comstock was quizzically surprised.

Antioch's 22-0 triumph over Kennedy High in the North Coast Section 4A area championship had observers convinced the Eagles weren't the East Bay's No. 1 team. Well, they certainly aren't now.

"I thought we'd get more from them," a seemingly bewildered Comstock replied. "They're a helluva of a football team. But, if you get right down to it, they had the turnovers, we didn't."

Kennedy stalled in three downs following the opening kickoff and Antioch's Mike Switters took the punt, dodged several tacklers, and weaved 59 yards to score. Quarterback Scott Bergerhouse then rolled right and scored the conversion. Antioch led, 8-0.

"Those two scores were the killer," Kennedy coach Don Wilson later agreed.

Antioch took the second half kickoff and expended nearly six and one-half minutes with a 65-yard, 15-play drive. Only once did Antioch pass. That, a fourth down completion from Bergerhouse to Tom Moore for 19 yards down to the 14. Four plays later, Bergerhouse crashed in from the one with Douville's conversion run gaining a 22-0 advantage .

Interceptions by Gordy Darling and Greg Taylor ended any comeback aspirations by Kennedy in the final minutes.

San Mateo drops Glads

CSM and Chabot during the regular season.

But that factor didn't hinder either team's explosive offenses. After Chabot took a 25-0 first quarter lead, everybody was about to pack their lunches for a warmer spot.

However, CSM crept to within 32-13 at halftime and 32-27 in the thirdquarter. CSM's two winning scores came too quick for the Glads to realize they had even lost the game.

The Bulldogs took over on their own 30 with 3:10 to play, behind 39-27. Quarterback Ralph Costanza, who completed 26 of 42 passes for 382 yards and four TD's, passed for five first downs in the drive that wound up with a nine - yard scoring toss to Dan Greenleaf with 59 seconds left in the game.

Costanza passed to Tim Doyle for the PAT, making the score 39-35.

CSM tried the inevitable on-sides kick and got it. The ball slipped through Chabot's line and John Smith pounced on it.

It took just four plays for Costanza to lead his troops into paydirt. He hit Dewey Bohling witth a 19-yard pass completion down to the Chabot 25, followed by a late hit penalty on the Glads, moving the ball to the 13 with 41 seconds remaining.

Aftea an incomplete pass, Costanza went back to pass but saw no receivers open. So, he scrambled to the right side and ran the 13 yards for a winning score with :33 showing on the clock. Dave Waterman's kick made the final score 42-39.

Chabot managed to reach their own 43 on a last - ditch drive, but a Ron Jones pass for a triple - teamed Jeff Evans in the end zone was batted down.

"We were just rattled, " said a very happy CSM coach Bill Dickey of his team's resurgence. "I think we were due."

The loss left Chabot's GGC mark at 5-3and CSM's at 6-2. The Glads are 5-5-1 overall.

Chabot revved up to a 25-0 lead in the first quarter. Jones Passed to Evans for a 70 - yard scoring bomb for the first score, while Eric Lane swept a yard for a TD at the 7:57 mark.

After an interception, the Glads marched 50 yards in eight plays for their next score, a nine-yard run by Les Santos. They capped the marathon quarter with an 80-yard, four-play drive that ended with a run of 15 yards by Santos 21 secons before the end of the period.

In the drive, Jones hit Dave Fernandez with passes of 30 and 36 yards.

San Mateo finally got a first down in the second quarter, in the process gearing up their league - leading offense which was heretofore putrid.

Costanza found Leroy Alexander open in the right corner for a 17-yard TD pass moments before the half, which cut the score to 32-13. Chabot's Steve Martinez and CSM's Jim Walsh each had one-yard touchdown plunges in the quarter.

Tim Doyle hauled in a pair of TD passes from Costanza in the third quarter, good for 30 and 31 yards and cutting the Chabot lead to 32-27.

The Glads managed some breathing room later, though, as Lane grabbed a six - yard pass from Jones latein the quarter for a 39-27 advantage.

Three times in the final period, though, the Glads were given shots inside Bulldog territory to score an icing touchdown without receiving any benefits via the scoreboard.

Only in the total offense category, where the Glads rolled up by far their best effort of the season — 540 yards — was there any statistical increase.

"Not enough to win it, though," Calkins calmly stated.

Dailey wins NCS

Arlene Dailey of Granada, played thrill-the-crowd for the second straight week, running away with the North Coast Sectional honors in the Girls Varsity competition.

Last year it was the Granada team that won the title, but this year it was the individual honors with Daley winning by a clear 10 yards over her second place competition Diane Kenny of Novato.

Mission San Jose won both the Varsity Boys and Girls team honors, the first time that any team had captured a complete sweep in North Coast competition.

Dave Coulman of San Marin won the Boys honors at the Indian Valley Junior College Course in Novoto, Marin County.

Trailing Coulman was Rod Berry of Redwood at 15:13, a second off of the first place time of 15:12.

Craig Hochhaus of Clayton Valley was in third, Mark Conover of Miramonte in fifth, Rob Wentworth of Livermore finished 11th, Mark Baker of San Ramon finished 16th, Mike Traynor of Clayton Valley 18th and Rod Van Buskirk of Pleasant Hill 20th, all representing Division II schools.

Team-wise, Granada finished in seventh and EBAL league-mate San Ramon in tenth with respective point totals of 174 and 190.

Miramonte finished two points back of MSJ in girls competition with 110 points and Pleasant Hill was in third with 121.

For San Ramon Girls team, Diana Bateman finished 22nd in 14:36,Roseann O'Conner 46th in 15:40; Alison Nemir 52nd in 15:28,Kathy Reinwich in 58th with a 15:40 clocking and Rita O'Connor 63rd in 15:46.

The last time an EBAL team finished in the top three in NCS Boys competition was two years ago when Livermore's team finished third. San Ramon had a string of three consecutive top three finishes including a team championship in 1973.

Results, see page 12

Livermore third in baseball

Livermore recently finished third in the Woodland Winter Baseball League with a 14-7 record.

A&W won the crown with a 16-5 mark and Parkway was second with a 15-6 record.

Livermore finished first in the third round.

Brian Swailes was the ace of the Livermore pitching staff, garnering a 10-3 mark and pitching three one-hitters. He also struck out 14 batters twice. Mark Davis (2-2) hurled one one-hitter and struck out 12 batters in one game.

Brad Burnham, Dan Wilkes Dan Wilkes, Wes Karch and Davis had the big bats for Livermore.

Burnham, from Livermore High, had a .349 average and 12 RBI's in 63 at bats. Wilkes, from Foothill, led the team in RBI's with 15 and batted .242 in 66 trips to the plate. Karch, from Granada, batted .419 and had 14 RBI's and Davis had a .395 average and 11 RBI's. John Bachleda also had a potent bat for Livermore, gaining a .323 average in 62 trips.

Frederickson wins

Fredickson School won the Murray School District seventh grade football championship with an 18-0 victory over Valley Christian last Wednesday.

Quarterback John Craw sparked the winners' offense. Joey Persons and Joe Terry led Fredickson's defensive efforts.

In other Murray championship action Wells took the round-robin eighth grade girls' volleyball invitational championship with a 6-0 mark. Knightsen of Brentwood finished second with a 4-2 record.

There will also be a seventh grade volleyball tournament Tuesday at Camp Parks.

Ron Van Der Meer Molds the all-tim U.C. Berkeley field goal record. Van Der Meer scored on a 54-yard attempt against Illinois in 1974.

Mats, Dons take openers

Defending East Bay Athletic League champion Granada and Dublin each took easy victories in opening non-league soccer matches late Friday afternoon.

Granada, despite starting freshmen, rolled over visiting Modesto, 7-0, and the Gaels dumped DeLaSalle, 7-3 in Concord.

Granada took a 7-0 lead before Modesto could reach the scoreboard. Scott Riggins scored the Matadors' first goal five minutes into the contest. Steve D'Ambra added the second goal 15 minutes later as Mark Robison added the assist.

Riggins scored the third goal off an assist from Don Aguiar to conclude the first-half scoring.

Robison made it 4-0 six minutes into the second period on another assist by Aguiar.

Robison, D'Ambra and Steve Richards added the other Matador goals.

Pepe Bautista scored Modesto's goal.

Freshman fullbacks Matt Robison and Sayana Saing played for the winners as did Jim Childs and Mike Fields.

Paul Mangini scored three goals to spark Dublin's win. His brother Peter, Luke Bryant, Finlay Boag and Kevin Dick each scored single goals.

Dick and Jorge Garrett had assists on Paul Mangini's goals.

Grant Golnick scored twice for the losers. Matt Kelly added the final Spartan goal on a penalty kick.

Dublin's junior varsity won, 3-1.

Livermore and California each opened the non-league seasons with wins Thursday but in vastly different ways.

California completely dominated the action in taking a 7-0 victory over Arroyo while the the Cowboys had to hold on for a 4-3 victory over Mt. Eden.

The Grizzlies built up a big 3-0 halftime advantage and coasted in from there. California had 28 shots on goal, with junior forward Greg Clrke getting three goals.

Other California goals were scored by Tim Ballard (two) and Chris Paynter and Kirk Bowles. Dave Anthony had an assist on Paynter's goal.

The Cowboys built up a 3-0 halftime advantage against Mt. Eden. Robert Turpin, John Howard and Dave Rashe scored the first-period goals.

However, the Monarchs came back on two goals by Randy Pratt in the second half, one a yarder, to close the gap to 3-2. Les Jacob put the game away for the 'Pokes with a 17-yard shot a minute later. Paul Jiminez added the final Mt. Eden goal.

In junior varsity action California and Arroyo tied, 2-2, and Livermore romped over Mt. Eden, 10-0.

Livermore will meet DeLaSalle, one of the Catholic League's better teams, Tuesday in Concord.

Tampoy takes El Camino

Last July in the West Coast's first $100,000 race of the season for two year olds, Elmendorf Farms supplimented a temperamental gelding to the Hollywood Juvenile.

Tampoy, an impressive winner of a maiden race, was co-favored with Affirmed, who has become the nation's top two year old. However, there was a delay in the starting gate, and Tampoy threw a wing-ding and had to be scratched along with the $5,000 Elmendorf had put up to get him in the race.

Tampoy paid back owner Max Gluck and trainer Vincent Clyne with a convincing two length victory in the $112,900 El Camino Real Stakes at Bay Meadows Saturday, earning $67,900.

Breaking from the outside 10th post, Tampoy was rated off the leaders by Fernando Toro. Staying on the outside, Toro eased Tampoy up to be on even terms with Capt. Don entering the stretch then pulled away to win in 1:42.4.

Capt. Don, who was losing his first race at Bay Meadows after two stakes triumphs, was second a half length in front of favored Noble Bronze.

"The race was set up perfectly," said Toro, who had flown 11,000 miles from South Africa to ride the winner. "My horse tended to lug out a bit, but he was on the outside and had no trouble. He finished strongly, and we just had a perfect trip."

Don dinner date

The Amador Valley High School football awards dinner, a no-host affair, is scheduled for Monday evening at 7 p.m. at the Exhibition Hall of the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

The dinner is open only to those involved with the football program. Varsity players should remember to bring a main course dish of sufficient size to feed eight while JV players should bring a salad for eight and freshmen, dessert for eight. Cheerleaders should bring french bread.

Raider linebacker coach Don Shinnick will be the featured speaker.

DROP-IN BASKETBALL

The free Drop-In-Basketball program sponsored by the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) Recreation Department will has been moved back to 8 from 10 p.m.

The rearrangement is due to Dublin High School's use of the gymnasium for basketball practice, according to the VCSD recreation department.

For further information, call 828-7711.

BOOSTER TICKETS

The Amador Valley High School Boosters have announced ticket prices for the winter events. For $12.50, a basketball and wrestling season ticket can be purchased. A Basketball Classic Extra is $5.00 — that will get you into every game of the Amador Basketball Classic. $17.50 will get an all-sports ticket. Those who have already purchased Basketball and All-Star cards may purchase the Basketball Classic card extra and it will be stamped onto your present card at the door.

CCSF tops DVC

SAN FRANCISCO — Matt Castagnola's 27-yard return with a blocked punt turned a close game into a runaway from Diablo Valley College Saturday afternoon, and Ron Green ran for 89 yards as City College of San Francisco rolled over DVC, 24-8, in the final game of the 1977 Golden Gate Conference football season.

City College finished the year at 4-4, while DVC repeated its 1976 record of 3-5.

DVC's only score came in the first quarter when Viking quarterback Ed Fitzgerald scored from the one to cap a 72-yard, 16-play drive, and with a Fitzgerald-to-Steve Jones two-point PAT pass, led CCSF recaliated with an immediate 57-yard march that was culminated by fullback Dan Lei's six-yard run, and, with a PAT kick by Hipp, took the lead for good, 10-8, just before Castagnola carried both the football and punter Fitzgerald 27 yards for a 17-8 lead.

The Rams then finsihed their scoring when quarterback Bill O'Leary ended a 54-yard sojourn with another one-yard run, following what was to be one of three passes Fitzgerald had picked off, this one by Kenneth Thompson deep in SF territory.

DVC's Butch Brooks stood out defensively with two interceptions of O'Leary passes, while Mike Brown led the Viking attack with 69 yards in 12 carries.

Besides Green's 89 yards, O'Leary was eight-for-21 in the passing department for 103 yards, while DVC's Fitzgerald was 1department for 103 yards, while DVC's Fitzgerald was 12-for-30 for 84 yards and three interceptions.

Hurray for the Holidays!

Hurray for this happy time of year when we renew ties with family and friends! Three cheers for vacations and more time for fun!

This is truly a season of festivities. Most of us do more entertaining between mid-December and mid-January than at any other time. It's a season for family dinners, open houses, midnight buffets, tree trimming and caroling suppers and after-the-game parties.

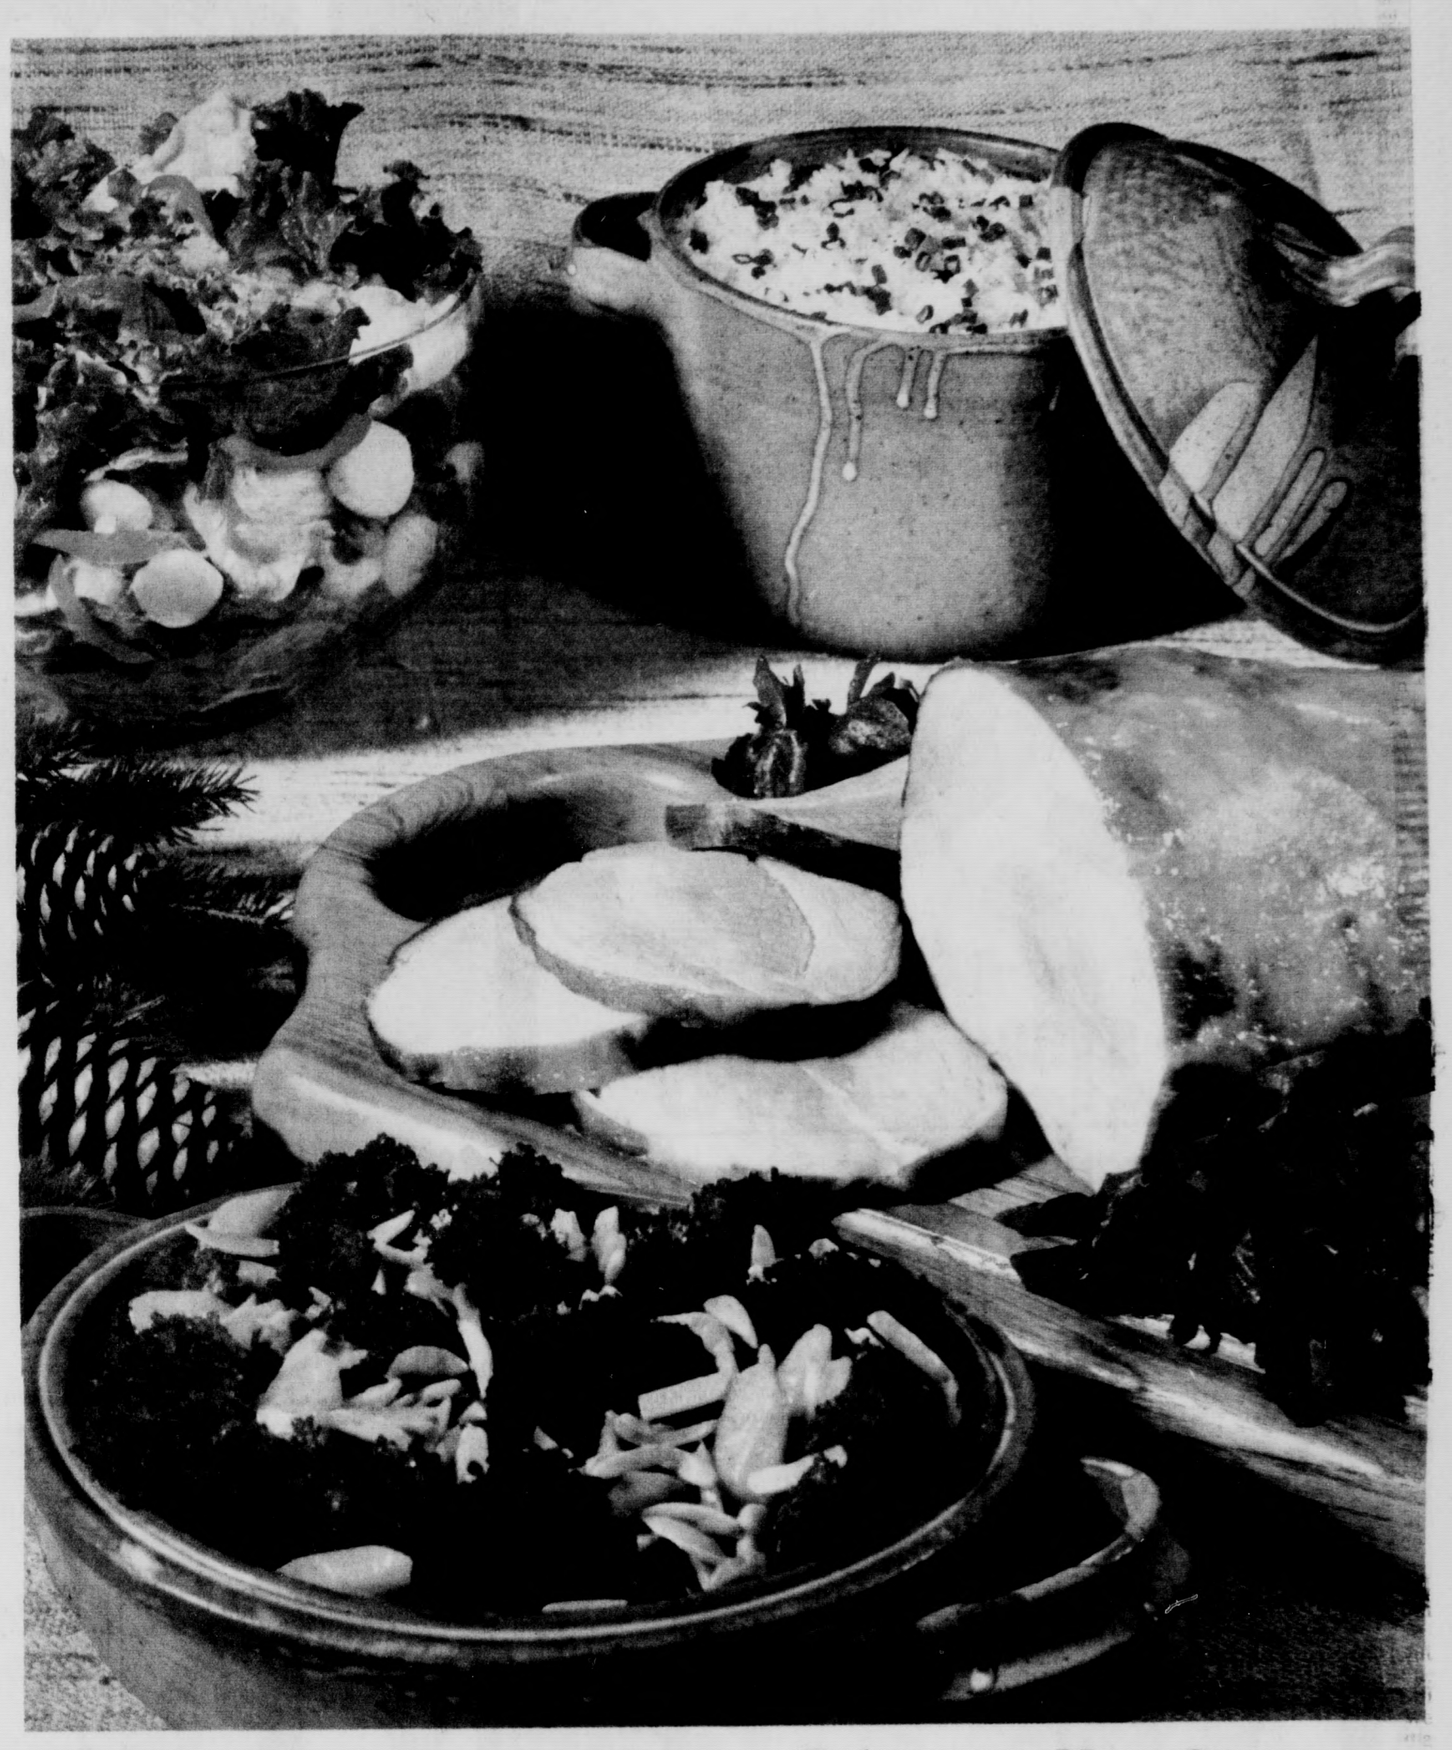
All of these occasions call for special foods, delectable dishes and tidbits we don't make every day or week of the year. Casual elegance is the fashion of today, and the formula for success is: Make it easy or make it ahead.

Ham is an established favorite for gala buffets and traditional feasts. A boneless "fully-cooked" smoked ham means maximum cooking and carving ease as well as more servings per pound.

Almonds are another favorite food for festive occasions. You'll find that you can use elegant almonds to enhance every category of the menu — literally from soup to nuts! A case in point is Broccoli and Carrots Almondine, a choice table-mate for baked ham.

Highlight your holiday happenings with these other special foods. Fast and easy to prepare for an informal party is Polynesian Ham Strips; it carries the ham feast tradition into the realm of casual entertaining. Almond Pork Balls make a spectacular table satellite and will disappear quickly along with another hors d' oeuvre winner, Smoked Sausage Rumaki. Both can be made ahead and stashed away in the refrigerator ready for the oven at the last minute. Count on Tarragon Almonds for memorable munching.

Here's to joyous holiday feasting with fabulous food for friends old and new.



Baked Holiday Ham

7 to 10-pound boneless "fully-cooked" smoked ham
Apricot-Mustard Glaze*

Place ham on a rack in an open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) until thermometer registers 140°F. (Allow approximately 15 to 18 minutes per pound.) Spread Apricot-Mustard Glaze over ham 20 minutes before end of cooking time.

*Apricot-Mustard Glaze

- 1 can (16 ounces) apricots
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1-1/2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Drain apricots, reserving syrup, and purée fruit in blender or put through food mill. Mix sugar and mustard; combine with apricots, 1/4 cup apricot syrup and lemon juice in small saucepan. Cook over moderate heat 8 to 10 minutes (to honey consistency), stirring occasionally.

Broccoli and Carrots Almondine

- 1 pound broccoli, trimmed
- 1 pound carrots, pared and diagonally sliced
- Salt
- 1/2 cup slivered almonds
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons minced parsley
- 1-1/2 teaspoons basil, crumbled
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme, crumbled
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Slice broccoli, keeping flowerettes in serving-size pieces. Place broccoli stems and carrots in large skillet; top with flowerettes. Add water to the depth of 1/2 inch. Sprinkle with salt. Cover tightly and bring to boil; boil gently for 6 minutes or until tender-crisp. Drain any remaining water from skillet. Cover and keep warm. Roast almonds in oil in large saucepan, stirring over medium-high heat. When almonds turn light gold, remove from pan with slotted spoon. Add butter, lemon juice, parsley, basil, thyme, salt and pepper to oil left in pan. Heat, stirring, until butter is melted. Pour over vegetables in skillet and toss well. Turn into serving dish. Sprinkle with almonds. 4 to 6 servings.

Polynesian Ham Strips

- 2 pounds cooked smoked ham or 2 "fully-cooked" ham slices, cut 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick
- 1 cup whole blanched almonds
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 can (15-1/2 ounces) pineapple chunks, in unsweetened juice
- 2/3 cup thinly sliced green pepper
- 1 can (11 ounces) mandarin orange segments, drained
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry (optional)

Cut ham in julienne strips (2-1/2 x 1/2 x 1/2 inches). Roast almonds in butter or margarine in large frying-pan, stirring over medium-high heat for about 2 minutes. Remove from pan with slotted spoon to absorbent paper. Add ham to frying-pan and cook over low heat 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Combine cornstarch, ginger and mustard. Drain pineapple; reserving juice; add water to total 1 cup liquid. Blend liquid into cornstarch mixture; add to ham strips and cook over medium-high heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in pineapple chunks and green pepper; cook slowly 5 to 6 minutes. Mix in almonds, mandarin orange segments and sherry. 6 to 8 servings.

Almond Pork Balls

- 1 cup whole or slivered almonds
- 1 pound ground pork
- 1-1/2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup catsup
- 1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs

Finely chop almonds and set aside. Sprinkle chili powder, salt and pepper over ground pork. Add egg, onion, catsup and bread crumbs; mix lightly but thoroughly and form into about 55 small balls. Roll balls in almonds to coat; place on rack in roasting pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) for 20 to 25 minutes or until cooked through. Serve on picks. Yield: about 55 meatballs.

Smoked Sausage Rumaki

- 1 package (12 ounces) smoked sausage links or 32 cocktail smoked sausage links
- 16 slices bacon, cut in half crosswise
- 1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts

Separate bacon and place on rack in broiler pan. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 10 minutes. Cut smoked sausage links in fourths; cut water chestnuts in half crosswise. Wrap each half slice of bacon around a piece of sausage and water chestnut and secure with small round wooden picks. Place on rack in broiler pan. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 10 minutes or until bacon is crisp. Yield: 32 appetizers.

Tarragon Almonds

- 1 cup whole blanched almonds
- 1 teaspoon butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon tarragon, crumbled
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme, crumbled
- 1/4 teaspoon onion salt

Spread almonds in shallow pan. Bake in slow oven (300°F.) for 35 minutes. (Almonds will be a golden color.) Add butter, tarragon, thyme and onion salt to pan. Toss well to mix. Cool almonds thoroughly in pan. Spoon into jar and store in refrigerator. Yield: 1 cup.

Big business burdened with 'rip off' image

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES — If you're like most Americans, you believe big business is ripping you off. In fact, overall business profits are lower than 10 years ago and trending down.

Public confidence in business, as measured in a recent Louis Harris survey, is at an all-time low of 16 per cent. Ten years ago, when corporate profits were far higher, it was 55 per cent. Revelations of multi-million dollar foreign payoffs and political slush funds may have something to do with public mistrust of business. But an increasing number of executives, educators and journalists think the problem is more basic — public misunderstanding of the free enterprise system, starting at the high school level and fostered by poor business reporting.

"The average American is economically illiterate," says Chuck Rossie, former manager of news planning for KNBC-TV here and now vice president of the Foundation for American Communications (FACS). "He doesn't understand that profits are translated into jobs, salaries and so on."

Other polls tend to support Rossie's view. A 1975 survey by the nonprofit Advertising Council found that 37 per cent of the public cannot think of any way in which their personal lives are affected by the rise or fall of business profits. The same survey found 24 per cent of the public replying "don't know" when asked to define "private enterprise."

Rossie, a veteran newsman, places some of the blame for "economic illiteracy" on his fellow journalists, noting that business reporting traditionally has been "relegated to secondclass status and hasn't gotten the same kind of treatment and consideration as so-called 'real' news." Others say America's youth never gets a good understanding of what the free enterprise system is all about.

Economist Victor Tabbush, vice president of the Foundation for Research in Economics and Education (FREE), says the average American's understanding of the free enterprise system is "deplorable" and says the problem starts at the high school level.

"Economics is always shortchanged," says Tabbush. "There are just very few courses dealing with economics and when they do surface, the people teaching have at their disposal very poor equipment."

Both FACS and FREE are attempting to improve public understanding of business and economics, FACS through programs aimed at upgrading business reporting and FREE through educational assistance.

Game egg business booming

PRINCETON, Minn. — More than 75,000 eggs are gathered on Jim Meyer's farm each year, but very few ever reach the breakfast table.

Meyer and his wife, Betty, run the Oakwood Game Farm, where they breed ringnecked pheasants, wild turkeys, chukar partridge and bobwhite quail. The farm south of here is one of the country's biggest game rearing operations.

Each year, about 70,000 pheasants, 1,000 wild turkeys, 1,500 quail and 3,000 chukars are produced.

Meyer, 33, said at one time he also raised mallard ducks, but quit because "they ate too much."

Meyer's birds are sold to hunting preserves where they are later released for sportsmen, to state wildlife departments or conservation organizations to be stocked in the wild and to restaurants. He has customers as far away as Puerto Rico, and in recent years the Nebraska Game and Fish Commission has ordered more than 250,000 birds.

"I get upset when I hear people say that game-farm birds are inferior," said Meyer, who has been in the business two years. "I do everything I can to produce a quality bird, not a dummy. "I specialize in producing a flighty bird. By selective breeding, I keep the birds small so they're excellent fliers.

"I've raised more than a half-million pheasants," he said. "I can tell you there's no such thing as a tame pheasant." Meyer said there is a demand for his product and a great need for farms like his, but maintained game farmers are constantly fighting a bad image.

"Our chicks don't see a building after they're six weeks old. And our culling (eliminating weak stock) is done by 'Old Man Winter'," he said.

Once the birds are moved to the outdoor rearing pens they seldom see humans, Meyer said. "I don't keep my birds on display," he said. "They're all placed in pens with heavy cover ... I turn dozens of people away who stop by to see the birds. But that's not the business I'm in. I'm trying to raise wild stock." Meyer maintains a breeding flock of about 1,500 hen pheasants and 125 roosters through the winter. He said they'll produce about 70,000 eggs. "It seems to be nature's thing," he said. "As long as you pick up the eggs, the hens keep laying."

After they are gathered, the eggs go into huge incubators, where they hatch in 23 to 25 days.

Occasionally, said Mrs. Meyer, a pheasant egg doesn't get a chance to hatch.

"Once in a while, Jim will bring some in to eat. He says pheasant eggs are sweeter," she said. "But most of the time we buy chicken eggs for breakfast. Silly isn't it, with all the eggs we have around here?"

'Rare prints'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — When Secret Service agents raided the Creative Arts Studio in Southern Oregon they found some very creative prints — bogus $20, $50 and $100 bills totaling $300,000.

Gary McLeod, in charge of the Portland Secret Service office, said two men were arrested in the raid Thursday and booked with manufacturing and possessing counterfeit U.S. currency.

Harry E. McKeown, 52, of Ashland, and Joseph M. Quinn, 47, of Roseburg, were scheduled to be arraigned today in Medford.

CETA funding set for LARPD, schools

LIVERMORE — Social Concerns Committee members approved 24 of 33 proposed CETA programs for a $266,000 grant.

Among those agencies receiving approval were Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD) and the Livermore Unified School District.

LARPD received $37,918 for five aides in an in-home supportive service for senior citizens. Aides would prepare hot meals and do light housekeeping chores for senior citizens.

And an outdoor recreational facility rennovation program will employ four CETA workers at $31,553, to improve and upgrade parks.

The funding begins in February and ends in September 30, but with the option of being continued if funding is extended.

The school district asked for $14,000 for two positions in custodial servics and two library technicians, also $14,000.

Another applicant for the funds, Buenas Vidas Ranch, asked for resource and environmental training for youths. The ranch will get $13,512 for the two positions.

Proposed work on the Springtown Golf Course drainage will provide work for four CETA employes, at a cost of $19,600. And the city asked for two positions for horizontal control system.

Garden Manor homes

New Crow Canyon phase

Grand opening festivities are currently in progress for the fourth phase of the Garden Manor homes at Crow Canyon Country Club located near Danville.

Earlier Garden Manor phases have been extremely successful, noted Kile Morgan Jr., director marketing for the builder, Broadmoor Homes, Inc. Morgan cited quality construction and the prestigious country club area as the most probable reasons for the success.

"But there are many outstanding features which buyers are excited about," he continued, "such as the zero side yard positioning which maximizes privacy and the area available for outdoor living.

These single-family homes have three and four bedrooms with 1,595 to 2,082 square feet and are priced from $90,000 to $122,000. Three elevations are available for each of the four plans. Garden Manor homes with their extensive amounts of wood, create an immediate impression of solidity, Morgan noted. "Cedar shake roofs along with an ample use of exterior wood makes the exteriors unusually dramatic, creating an impression of warmth and luxury.

Many custom appointments are included in the overall architectural design. Among these are interior garden atriums, formal entries, dramatic high sloping ceilings, sunken living rooms and wet bars.

In the kitchens are General Electric kitchen appliances, pantries, furniture-finished hardwood cabinets, luminous ceilings, ceramic tile counter tops, pass-through windows, and in most plans convenient breakfast nooks.

Several of the bedrooms include elegant king size master suites with vaulted ceilings, separate dressing areas with mirrored wardrobe doors in the master suites, extensive wardrobes and, dramatic double-door master suite entries.

Baths have cultured marbel counter tops, shadow-free, luminous soffit lighting over all pullmans, compartmentalized commodes, and over-sized, oval tubs in the master baths of most plans.

Neighborhood amenities include proximity to the luzurious private Crow Canyon Country Club clubhouse, exclusive use of six neighborhood parks and pools, underground utilities and gate attendent at the main entry.

These gracious residences, highlighted by location, offer views of park areas, open space or the private Crow Canyon Golf Course.

In addition to the championship caliber 18-hole golf course is a tennis complex with 13 lighted tennis courts and an AAU competition swimming pool.

The 34,000-square-foot clubhouse offers two dining areas, snack bar, grill room, cocktail bar and lounge, dance floor, golf and tennis pro shops and locker rooms, each with Jacuzzi spa.

To reach Crow Canyon Country Club, take Highway 680 to the Crow Canyon Exit east and go directly to the Community.

That dark cloud over mortgage rates

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — At the housing conventions this week they're watching and talking about the little cloud on the horizon.

Nobody in housing can ever take his or her eye off that cloud for long, even though sunshine is bathing their industry in some of the best years of its life. That little cloud, they say, can soak you.

The savings and loan people, meeting in San Francisco, heard a report that this was their "greatest year ever." In Miami Beach, realtors have been talking about the best year ever in sales of existing single-family homes.

Are they hypochondriacs? Perhaps, but you have to listen anyway, because that cloud probably concerns you too, and anyone else who is likely to be disheartened or pleased by rising home mortgate rates.

"There has been some talk of disintermediation," said John Hardin, president of the United States League of Savings Associations, made up of the nation's primary home mortgage lenders.

Disintermediation! It's like saying the small cloud has become a hurricane and a small leak has been discovered amid ships and that water is seeping into the engine room but that we'll just have the orchestra play louder and maybe it will plug itself.

Disintermediation leaves housing helpless. It is when interest rates become so attractive in bonds and certificates of deposit and government securities that people withdraw their money from thrift institutions.

Thrifts — savings banks and savings and loan associations — can't make mortgage loans without savings.

It hasn't happened yet, and some of the best informed analysts of interest rates and savings say it won't happen either. The seepage won't become a flood, they say, no matter how often in the past it has happened.

In fact, it happens regularly whenever we're at the tail end of an economic expansion, and nobody in Washington or elsewhere has tried to do much about it. In a downturn, housing is the first to get hit.

The problem is that savings and loans aren't in a strong position to compete for funds when interest rates are rising generally. The explanation is simple: they are limited by law to the rates they can pay.

Aid for Oakland's housing

OAKLAND — The City of Oakland signed a special $2 million agreement with Bank of America for residential rehabilitation and restoration in the city's flatland neighborhoods.

Te agreement is unique because it will serve to accelerate the city's Marks-Foran program. Under the lending program, the bank through its City Improvement and Restoration Program, (CIRP), will act as lender in the disbursal 4 Community Development Block Grant funds provided by the federal government, until the city issues Marks-Foran bonds.

Khyl Smeby, Bank of America senior vice president chairman of the bank's CIRP committee, said at the signing, he feels it is appropriate that Oakland should begin this housing rehabilitation program that will eventually benefit so many Californians. "A partnership initiated today between Oakland and the bank will pioneer a significant effort at the improvement and restoration of California's communities.

This is the initial phase of a major effort to improve the quality of housing in many of our older neighborhoods," said Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson. "This 6 special financing arrangement enables us to get a head start on meeting our housing rehabilitation needs.

Blair Egli, vice president and manager of the bank's Oakland main office says he is optimistic about the program's potential to fill a largely unmet need. "Cities seldom have the expertise act as lenders of federal revenue sharing funds for housing rehabilitation. We are pleased to join with Oakland in channeling loans at below-market rates to qualified residents in the city."

The funds, which will be admisistered by Egli's branch, are available to homeowners in the city's seven community development districts — the flatland areas below the MacArthur Freeway, south to San Leandro and in North Oakland, west of upper Broadway. The loans are available for 15 year terms under the present setup and there is no maximum income limit for participation, Egli said.

The city will rely on this interim financing until it is able to sell tax-exempt Marks-Foran bonds to finace its rehabilitation programs. The Marks-Foran bonds to finance it rehabilitation programs. The Marks-Foran program, created by the state legislature in 1973, enables cities to issue tax-exempt bonds to finance the improvement of housing.

The signing ceremony was held last week in the Mayor's office at Oakland city hall.

Oakland is the 23rd Californis community to participate in the bank's program.

Home design: live in your own time

AP — Charlotte Finn, designer of interiors and furnishings, encourages young people to live in their own time — they may not be able to afford antiques and "why live in another world anyway," she says.

"Contemporary rooms are really more suitable to our casual, care-free lives and it suits the mode of dress for the young especially," she says.

Color is a big influence "on the way we feel about the way we live," she maintains. Choose color for its soothing effects, to provide a warm, friendly feeling, and to set the mood for an entire house. She likes combinations of shrimp and apricot, perhaps teamed with taupe brown. In another room of the same house, she may use a deeper salmon color and another brown.

"You want to be able to walk in a room and smile," she says. "I like happy rooms. White combined with bone or yellows or other fresh, clear colors makes a very attractive focal point. You really need only one fabric, print or solid, to pull a room into place. It can be the key to an entire environment."

Young people should be inspired by portability, modular rooms that can move easily from home to home. And there are all sorts of boxes and bins that can be stacked and combined and used for storage, display or whatever. Many young people are living in studio apartments and they should realize, Mrs. Finn says, that a real bed can fit beautifully into their decorating scheme. Topped with an interesting blanket or inexpensive throw, it can serve as extra seating. Never leave it unmade, though, she advises.

One bed of her own design is designed to fit in anywhere — it is made of mica, a soft look, and is rounded at the corners. She stands a screen behind it. As she points out, the screen could be changed from time to time to provide a change of scene. A square club chair, another design, takes on a new look with different cushions.

Mrs. Finn enjoys using quilted duck as an upholstery fabric. It is durable, easy-care and inexpensive. She also likes area rugs. And she suggests track lighting as a good alternative to some lamps. It can be detached when one moves to another place. She often suggests bamboo blinds.

A vivacious, youthful-looking mother of three sons, 27, 23 and 17, she has had a lot of experience doing their rooms.

"Each got his own room at 13, when he had his Bar Mitzvah, but I've worked with every age group, and it is getting so that everybody wants the same kinds of things. Older people especially want easy maintenance."

She decorates many resort homes and likes to work from the ground up with a plan and a builder. "Clients want new ideas, a new feeling.

"If the interior designer gets involved early she can suggest changes in structure. One house for a young couple was at the framing stage when there was still time to put in an extra window to take a view into consideration. Another ranch house in New York was redesigned so that spectacular wood scenery could be seen from the master bedroom," says Mrs. Finn, who likes sliding doors out to decks to open up rooms.

Then, too, people forget that kitchens must be more than pretty they must function and be large enough to contain all the things needed to produce a successful meal. There should be a minimum of walking space, counters near the oven, a broom closet and pantry, and good lighting, especially counter lighting that can be plugged into a counter outlet.

In addition to some furniture — beds, tables and lamps — that she has designed on a small scale, Mrs. Finn has done a number of colorful contemporary accessories — place mats, waste basket, glasses and other things that are well coordinated.

Before establishing her business in White Plains, N.Y., she had "apprenticed" for six years at a local furniture stores, where she did everything from selling the merchandise to offering a complete introudction to decorating to the client.

Investors see rise in B of A Realty

San Francisco — Trustees of Realty Investors, a real estate investment trust, today announced net earnings of $4,991,000, or $1.41 per share of beneficial interest, for the first quarter ended October 31.

This compares with net earnings of $741,000, or 21 cents per share, for the corresponding period a year ago.

The trustees declared a dividend of 15 cents per share, payable December 22, to shareholders of record November 30.

Chairman Eugene P. Carver said net income included gains of $5,165,000 resulting from the sales of the site underlying the Beverly Wilshire Hotel in Beverly Hills and an apartment project which had been non-earning at July 31.

Carver said non-earning investment were reduced to $47,304,000, or 23 percent of the portfolio, at October 31 from $59,470,000, or 27 percent of the portfolio at July 31, the trust's fiscal year-end. The trust's investment portfolio now totals approximately $204,900,000.

He said a $500,000 addition was made during the quarter to the trust's allowance for possible losses. Charges totalling $5,800,000 were made against the allowance, which currently totals $7,300,000. The charges related to two non-earning investments, he said. One is a partial interest in a loan for the construction of a high rise apartment on which work was halted three years ago. The second is a parcel of land which the trust acquired through foreclosure. The trust has signed option agreements to sell its interest in each of the investments.

Carver also reported that on November 4, the trust borrowed $10,000,000 from a New York bank. The interest rate on the loan will be fixed at 8.80 percent through December 31, 1981, and thereafter will float at 117 percent of the bank's prime interest rate until the loan matures on December 31, 1983. The proceeds were used to reduce the trust's short-term borrowings, he said.

BankAmerica Realty Services, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of BankAmerica Corporation, is the advisor to BankAmerica Realty Investors.

A pretty blond from Sweden, Marie Ann-Catrin Stavins, has been selected Miss World 1977 in England.

Judges select Miss World '77

LONDON — Marie Ann Catrin Stavins, a farmer's daughter who was mowing hay last summer when she was asked to replace Miss Sweden, was named Miss World 1977 at London's Royal Albert Hall. "I thought they'd choose anyone but me. I never expected it to be me," the blond, blue-eyed 20-year-old sobbed as outgoing Miss World Cindy Breakespeare of Jamaica crowned her Thursday night.

Second was Miss Holland, 25-year-old model Ineke Berends; third, Miss Germany, 23-year-old law student Dagmar-Gabrielle Winkler; fourth, Miss Brazil, 21-year-old student Madalena Sbaraini, and fifth, Miss United States, 20-year-old psychology student Cindy Miller of Chesapeake, Va.

Outside the hall, 20 banner-waving demonstrators chanted "Racism out, sexism out, equality in" before the show and stink bombs were thrown. Feminists say the contest degrades women.

Ten participants were withdrawn by their governments to protest the inclusion of Miss South Africa, 20-year-old white model Vanessa Wanneburg. South Africa's white government has been the target of diplomatic, sports and other sanctions for its apartheid policy.

Miss Stavins, a gymnastics student with a 32-24-35 figure, became Miss Sweden after the winner decided to go to the competing Miss Universe pageant in the United States. Organizers made a telephone call to Miss Stavins and asked her to represent Sweden in the Miss World show.

Button buff

Buttons, buttons, who got buttons? Myra Terry-Meisner of Mountainside, N. J., displays the buttons she brought to the National Women's Conference in Houston, Texas, Friday. With her are other New Jersey delegates to the conference; Faith Schindler of Summit, center, and Fran Avallone, right, of East Brunswick.

The kitchen: where it's at in the home

Even short order cooks will agree, the kitchen is becoming the focal point in many homes. Cooking enjoyment is growning and a mislaid garlic bulb can create a crisis.

Some are large and rambling kitchens that recall the baronial cookery from the days of yore about which the household revolved. Others are elegant users of space with chic, modern equipment, tools, collections and dinning areas. No matter, kitchens are "in" and all of the facets are explored by Terence Conran in what might be the ulimate book of its type, "The Kitchen."

A functional handsome kitchen can by accomplished even by "doing it on the cheap," he explains in the book. These can include the shelf kitchen — a whole kitchen wall hung with shelves; a cupborad kitchen — one that might be screened from visitors' view by sliding doors; and an island kitchen which is possible if there is enough space to move about in even though the area is small.

Kitchens of professionals with their great assemblage of equipment can provide mary ideas that might be coied on a lesser scale. A spectacular kitchen, 20 feet by 40 feet, belonging to George Lang, restaurateur, calligrapher, concert violinist, is an example. Certain luxuries — a huge refrigerator that holds a full case of champagne might not be important to the average householder — but they might be intrigued by electric units built into counters, a well in a counter that dispenses hot plates or a combined floor idea, white ceramic tile and dark parquet.

Chooosing a style is another consideration. Streamlined and glossy? Farmhouse style? Equipped with comfortable upholstered pieces? A family center that is child-oriented?

There are handsome minimal kitchens and sculptural contemporary kitchens. Relating the kitchen to the house is an important point with emphasis on view, style, light, sun, car parking accessibility, the intergration of floors and ceilings to the rest of the house, Conran points out.

Advice on planning your kitchen from the standpoint of color, maintenance (including a list of cleaning aids, finishes and their care, utensils and their care) laundries and work rooms is another good feature of the book. One chapter is devoted to problem kitchens.

Interesting innovations include baskets placed on shelves beneath work counters and used like drawers. An arrangement of narrow shelves is set up like a maze on a wall and has a sculpture look even at its narrow shelves accomodate jars, glasses and canisters. If there is enough space one can consider using pan cupboards, service cupboards and washing-up space for stacking clean crockery.

In addition to illustrationg kitchens with collectibles — plates on walls, ceramic toasters on shelves, and the like there are all the wonderful tools from butter curlers to egg wedgers, all the mixing and measuring things, salad baskerts, whisks and coffee mills. Baking utensils, roasters and casseroles are illustrated along with hundreds of gadgets including the electrically powered kinds.

It is an elegant book handsomely illustrated with haundreds of color pictures, and hardly anything has escaped the author's culinary eye. The book also contains a list of manufacturers, distributors and stores where many of the items are available.

Wheaties hit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The makers of Wheaties, "the breakfast of champions," are being sued for false advertising.

The television commercials featuring Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner touting the breakfast cereal were challenged in a suit filed Thursday by the San Francisco District Attorney's consumer fraud crime unit.

The Superior Court suit accuses General Mills Inc. and its advertising agency of making false claims in the commercials in which Jenner says he "downed a lot of Wheaties" in preparation for the Olympics.

"It is difficult to believe that an Olympic caliber athlete such as Bruce Jenner actually used Wheaties as an important nutrial source in training for the 1976 Olympics," said David C. Moon, consumer fraud attorney.

The suit also challenges Wheaties' claim that it is the "breakfast of champions." Moon said General Mills has not offered any proof that champions train on Wheaties.

The new elk

CONCORD (AP) — Six tule elk — spared slaughter in Owens Valley — were exploring a new environment today in the Concord Naval Weapons Station.

They were the first of 30 elk the state Department of Fish and Game hopes to transfer from Owens Valley to Concord this week.

Man's place isn't in the home

(AP) — A husband who put corn meal instead of soap powder in the washing machine? It was by mistake, but it has happened in the love, honor, obey and help-with-the-housework set.

It seems some wives have even been eager to drop the share-the-work idea. It is not only expensive, "but our house always looked as if it had been burglarized," said one 25-year-old.

Men simply don't have the knack of the fine art of house husbandry whatever it is supposed to be, say wives who discussed homemaking mix-ups.

"Sometimes I've been happy that I can get to a house job before he tries to help me," said one secretary, who aims to spare her husband's feelings. "I never know what he is going to do next. For example, in absentmindedly cleaning out a wastebasket, he managed to discard a brand new blouse that was in a shopping bag that he used for the trash."

For one wife it was the end of her favorite dress. She had asked her husband to give her a little hand with the ironing and he used a very hot iron on her garment of manmade suede. "It almost seemed as if he didn't have common sense, and I guess he wasn't listening when I told him how to do it," she said.

Even so, most wives are in sympathy with their husbands. "He has a lot of things on his mind," one 27-year-old said her husband, who is a certified public accountant. She had hoped he would help cut the house budget but so far he has increased it.

"He went to the market to buy Chinese cabbage and came back with endive and was surprised to find that it had cost $6 ... "

Another wife is sure her husband doesn't consider it demeaning to help with the housework: he just senses his own inferiority in that respect, she explained. When she returned from an emergency trip to her parents' house she was amazed that the kitchen floor hadn't been washed or the floor swept under chairs in two weeks. He just said that he was planning to get to it, she commented.

One wife has solved that problem: Only ask them to do big things — washingwalls, waxing floors, hanging curtains — things a man feels a woman shouldn't do. Her husband is willing because she doesn't ask him to do the piddling things, she explained.

Women have a greater sense of obligation about housework, she feels, perhaps because they were conditioned to it by their mothers. In her house, the boys were rarely expected to help in the kitchen. That's why they hate small chores.

As for cooking many working wives and husbands eat out more to take the strain off the kitchen chores, but lots of men enjoy cooking when they are given free rein.

"And you can't give them the opportunity to do a big meal or it will be highly cholesterol with gravy, butter, cream, all the fattening things. And they leave a kitchen in chaos." She and her husband argue a lot about food. He insist he's eaten nothing but hamburgers and spaghetti since they were married.

One 23-year old girl was concerned that her husband of two years insisted on using the fine china and silver instead of the regular flatware and pottery for everyday meals.

Housing investors leave CCC

San Francisco — Housing speculators — those who buy houses strictly as investments, rather than for habitation — have either left or are leaving Contra Costa County.

That was the conclusion of the San Francisco-based United Financing Corporation following a four-month long study.

How did researchers for United, a parent company of Citizens Saving and Loan Association, arrive at this rather bold conclusion?

By reading newspapers.

"We started with the hypothesis" + said spokesman Thomas Rondell, "that the amount of rental ads in the papers would decrease with in a similar change in speculation."

Housing speculators always rent their investment homes to partially cover mortgages and property tax while awaiting changes in the housing market, Rondell said.

So United's researchers diligently measured the length of housing rental ads in the county's papers, including the Contra Costa Times.

From this survey of papers and a spot-check of year-old papers, United concluded: — There was a 14 percent reduction in rental ads in September, 1977 compared to September, 1976. — And there was a 5 percent reduction in October, 1977 compared to October, 1976.

The trend of declining ads and amount of speculation began early this year, according to United statistics.

"This decline in the number of home rentals that began in April and May continued such that the September and October index values remain below those for the like months of 1976.

"It appears that single-family housing speculation has ended in Contra Costa County," the United study concluded.

The researchers also surveyed newspapers for a comparision of September, 1977 and September, 1976 in other traditional high-speculation areas in California.

They found a 12 percent decline in ads in Santa Clara County on the San Francisco penninsula, a 17 percent drop in Orange County and a 10 percent decline in the San Fernando Valley.

"This is the first time that index values have dropped below any month of a preceding year (in Orange County) since the speculative wave began," United concluded.

The housing-market watchers guessed why people aren't considering housing speculation as a method of making money.

United's Rondell said "live in" clauses in second-mortgage contracts prevent speculation.

In recent months, he said, many home loan institutions require that homeowners promise to live in their new homes for a period of time.
